Comeau Jurors Warned on 'Confessions'

DEATH GRIP PICTURED BY SAMBURSKY IN HIS STORY OF COP'S FATE

With two confessions already placed into the record, Police Inspector James A. Dennessey at the Comeau murder trial today read the third—that of John Robert Samburesky, one of the three alleged slayers.

Samburesky, Albert DeShone and Stanley Toothaker, all of Roxbury, are charged with killing Policeman Frank J. Comeau in front of the Fields Corner police wagon house in Dickens street, Dorchester.

There were a recess in the proceedings at noon when Assistant District Attorney Timothy Callahan, prosecuting the case, announced that he had at one more witness to put on, but that the witness would not be available until more than an hour later. An adjournment for an hour was taken.

Before Inspector Dennessey read the third confession today, Judge James Jack, presiding in Suffolk superior court, warned the jurors that the confession of Samburesky and Toothaker, read yesterday, were to be considered only as each youth's statements affected him personally.

As in the two previous confessions, that of Samburesky sketched the events preceding the slaying and

EXPERT ACCOUNTANTS FIND BOOKS AT CITY HALL ARE FALSIFIED

Twenty-eight false entries were unearthed today by expert auditors in the investigation of the alleged shortage in the office of City Collector McMorrow as City Hall, which has already caused suspension of a cashier and a teller.

The entries made in connection with water returns appear on the books for May 28, while shortages have been checked back as far as mid-April. The total of the entries amounts to approximately $6,500.

While the auditors diligently dug into the records, John Leahy, No. 7 Addis street, Brighton, tax sales clerk, was appointed acting cashier to succeed John J. McCarthy of Riverway, who, with Francis J. O'Donnell of Haverford street, Jamaica Plain, was removed by order of Mayor Nichols when the sudden investigation was launched.

O'Connell had a conference with the city auditor, the city collector and members of the city law department, and he was officially quoted as having said at that conference that he made the false entries to "cover up" McCarthy.

STUDENTS ON JAG FACE DISGRACE; GIRLS IN ORGY

Hippocket flasks, a wild automobile ride to Nantasket Beach, petting parties during the early hours of morning, the arrest of at least three persons, and the considered expulsion of at least that many more from Cambridge High and Latin School were revelations made today in the closing days of the high school year.

Boys and girls alike, singing and merrymaking in four or five automobiles, left Cambridge following the Junior "Prom" at Elks" ballroom on May 14.

They arrived at Nantasket Beach, some of them in an intoxicated condition, according to admissions made by school officials.

Superintendent of Schools Michael E. Fitzgerald denied today that there was any liquor at the Junior "Prom." He stated that he questioned each person said to be in the party and discovered that the liquor was obtained after the "Prom" and by boys in the party who were not students.

He denied rumors that several of the students had already been expelled and stated that their expulsion was only under consideration.

HURL BRICK INTO GEM SHOP; FLEE WITH LOOT

Robbers hurled a brick through one of the show windows in Bigelow-Kennard & Co., Washington street jewelers, early today, stole about a dozen fancy wrist watches and raced to safety through side streets.

Michael Lacey, night watchman, chased after them, saw them turn into Chickering place to Harrison avenue, and then lost sight of them.

A policeman who was standing near Child's Restaurant, Washington street, saw the thugs running, tried to cut off their escape by making for Harrison avenue by a short route, but was unsuccessful. Reserves were summoned from La-Grange street station, combed that area that extends from Harrison avenue to Sumner street, and saw nobody.

The loot stolen from Bigelow-Kennard & Co.'s window has not been officially valued. Property loss is set at $1,000, at least. Later an inventory will be taken.

Where Religion Thrives Automobile Excitement Mr. Brookhart's Ideas A Petrified Brain

—By Arthur Brisbane

CARDINAL CHAROST, first French Prince of the Roman Catholic Church that ever visited the United States, is on his way to the great Eucharistic gathering in Chicago. He can assure his friends in Europe that religions prosper in a country where Government and Church are kept apart, not allowed to interfere with each other.

When he landed in New York the Cardinal found a great State with a Roman Catholic for Governor, and that Governor the most conspicuous candidate for the Democratic Presidential nomination in 1928; another Roman Catholic Mayor, another at the head of the public school system. As he drove to his hotel, traffic was regulated and turned aside to clear the way by Roman Catholic policemen on foot and on motorcycles. A fair field and no favor is all that any religion needs.

THRONGS CHEER IRISH PRIMATE IN NEW YORK

New York, June 11.—Thousands of spectators lined Broadway and other streets from the Battery to the Hotel Vanderbilt today to shout an enthusiastic welcome to Cardinal Patrick O'Donnell, primate of Ireland, who arrived on the President Roosevelt on his way to the Eucharistic Congress at Chicago.

The Roosevelt docked at Hoboken and the Cardinal was brought on a city boat to the Battery where he was met by city officials and delegations of numerous Catholic and Irish organizations.

Cardinal O'Connell brought two messages from Ireland to America. In one, "from the Irish people in the American people," he declared: "To all Americans, as well as to those of the Irish race, our gratitude is great and lasting. The generosity of America will never be forgotten in Ireland, for all our wants we had the generous helper in the greater Ireland on this side of the Atlantic."

In his message to American Catholics, he said:

"All who have received the blessed eucharist are united in devotion to our Divine Lord, and so the whole world is united in concord among men."

ONE ARREST IN GIRL ATTACK

Salem, June 11.—Charged with attacking Florence Meaney, a bookkeeper, in the Salem woods in an affair involving three men, Francis J. Burke, twenty-two, an Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway employe, was arrested today.

Burke, who lives in Essex street, was identified by Miss Meaney as the man whom she said took her for an auto ride into the woods where two men approached the car in Quint street, one of them holding a gun, pulled the girl out of the auto and ripped her clothing.

The youth when arrested denied being a confederate of the men in the woods. He declared two shots were fired over his head by the assailants. To the girl when he took her for a ride, Burke is alleged to have given his name as that of another man, but she identified him.

B. & M. FREIGHT HEAD KILLED AT SPRINGFIELD

Farrar of Waltham, general freight agent of the Boston & Maine Railroad, died in Springfield Hospital today as the result of an accident at the local railroad station. He was struck by a baggage truck while standing on the station platform. The truck was hurled against him by a switching engine.

Mr. Farrar had stepped off an express train from Detroit shortly after 9 o'clock for a breath of air before his train proceeded to Boston.

He was rushed to the hospital, where it was found his skull had been fractured.

3 CARBARN SLAYERS TO DIE FOR CRIME

John McLaughlin, Edward J. Heinlein and John J. Devereaux, convicted as murderers of James H. Ferneau, aged Waltham carbarn watchman, must go to the electric chair.

The full bench of the Supreme Court, in an opinion handed down today, overruled the exceptions of McLaughlin and Heinlein jointly and that of Devereaux individually.

Immediate sentence will be asked by District Attorney Reading.

"The Massachusetts Supreme Court, one of the strongest tribunals in the United States, has passed on the issue," he said.

Following conviction in Middlesex County a number of weeks ago, McLaughlin and Heinlein sent exceptions into Supreme Court on the ground that the actual shooting of Ferneau was committed by Devereaux and that therefore they were not equally culpable. Devereaux, in his exceptions, took the ground that theslaying was a sudden act, not premeditated, and that he should not have been convicted of first degree murder.

In the Supreme Court opinion, written by Judge Carroll, it was stated, however:

"The defendants were joint conspirators. They went to the carbarn in order to commit the crime of robbery. Three of them were armed with deadly weapons."

AUDITORS PROBE CITY HALL BOOKS AS SHORTAGE IS REVEALED

DOORS ARE CLOSED TO PUBLIC

The two men suspended by Mayor Nichols as a result of discovery of the alleged shortage, is now said to have had charge of collections of real estate tax payments, personal property taxes and poll taxes, as well as the collections for water service in connection with which the $6,500 discrepancy was said to have been found.

$65,383,987 COLLECTED.

Collections from these sources amounted to $65,383,987 last year and on a single day, October 2, totaled more than $20,000,000. In the water department alone collections for the first quarter of this year were $648,000, practically all of it coming in in a single day, and for last year the collections were $4,480,000.

Constables who served the suspension orders did not see McCarthy, but left the papers with his wife, it was said at City Hall when he did not appear at the expected hour for a conference today with the law department, according to arrangement. At an earlier conference McCarthy asked a delay until he talked with counsel, it was reported.

Both McCarthy and Francis J. O'Connell, the latter a suspended teller, were absent today from their homes, O'Connell from his extremely modest third-floor apartment in Haverford street, Roxbury, and McCarthy from his suite at fashionable Allen Park Manor.

O'Connell's wife, sorrowing in her modest flat, said if anything was wrong it was because her husband was foolish enough to want to be a "good fellow" purely for somebody else's benefit.

The salaries of McCarthy and O'Connell are $3,000 and $2,500, respectively. While Mrs. O'Connell defended her husband, at the McCarthy apartment no one could be found except a woman, ostensibly a maid, who reported the family had gone away late last night.

"I was as much surprised as anyone when I was told by a stranger that my husband was suspended because of a shortage in the office where he worked," said Mrs. O'Connell.

"I cannot believe he is guilty of any wrongdoing. I am sure he received none of the money or made any gain in any way whatever from any money that may have been taken at City Hall.

"I haven't got a nickel in the world and neither has he. My husband never made a practice of discussing his affairs at City Hall in the eleven years we have been married. He always 'closed up shop' when he left work each day.

"When I questioned him about the reported shortage of $6,500 and asked him why he hadn't told me about his predicament, he told me he didn't think it was of any interest to me. However, I have every confidence in his innocence and am unable to believe he has benefited by so much as one cent."

The O'Connells have three children.

McCarthy has been prominent in Boston politics for years. He was one of the officials in the mayoralty campaign headquarters of John F. Fitzgerald and acted as assistant to John F. McDonald, manager of the Fitzgerald campaign against the late James J. Storrow in 1924.

He was appointed to the collecting department by Fitzgerald, serving as a deputy collector. Under the collectorship of John J. Curley he was made cashier.

O'Connell was appointed to the collecting department by John J. Curley in 1918.

AMEND FRENCH WAR DEBT PACT

Paris, June 11 (Universal)—An amendment to the Berenger debt agreement providing for the payment of the war debt in francs instead of dollars, and specifying that the francs remain deposited in Paris until the franc is permanently stabilized, was adopted by the caucus of Socialist deputies.

This move makes certain that the 98 Socialist deputies will unanimously refuse to ratify the agreement in its present form.

In parliamentary circles it is thought Ambassador Berenger has lost his fight for ratification without amendment, unless Premier Briand is able to save the situation with unexpected strategy.

WOMAN RESCUED FROM AUTO AFIRE IN CRASH

McCullough was president of the old Boston city council and for one term member of the State Legislature. MUST PAY NOTE, COURT RULES

Reversing a verdict of the Superior Court, the full bench of the Supreme court order Frank M. Waitendorf, former director of the Old South Trust Company to pay a note for $10,033.24 which he claimed was given without consideration.

The note, the decision contends, was a part of the bank assets by which Waitendorf's own stock might be more valuable. The note was given to cover an investment made in Massachusetts Electric which was later deemed unwise by the bank.

told of several burglaries effected by the boys in Greater Boston.

They were partial to guns, the statement revealed, but Sambursky insisted that they carried them only to "scare" people in the event of being caught.

Toothaker was never allowed to carry a gun, Sambursky said, because Sambursky would not trust him with one.

As in Toothaker's confession, that of Sambursky declared that Policeman Comeau had gripped the hand of young DeShone before the death shot was fired.

"The officer had hold of his (DeShone's) wrist, as far as I can remember," said Sambursky in his statement, "and he (DeShone) had hold of the officer's wrist—the gun hand. That's all I can remember."

The boy declared that Comeau and DeShone were "wrestling."

One part of the confession contained a statement that Sambursky generally spent his evenings at home in Roxbury, "reading books most of the time, but as far as I know about by Al, he used to say he went out with the girls all the time."

LEAGUE CRISIS UNSETTLED

Geneva, June 11 (A.P.)—The June session of the League of Nations council has adjourned, with the crisis centering in the demand of Brazil and Spain for permanent seats still acute.

Brazil's message announcing her resignation from the council, was made public today.

Brazil says she firmly intends to leave to the great powers the responsibility they seek and for her part to remain faithful to the American ideals, without which the world would never succeed in terminating the race of armaments or in obtaining the reign of peace on earth.

"Without these ideals," the measure says, "the world would never have the force to punish war of aggression as an international crime and substitute obligatory arbitration."

Referring to her veto of Germany's election to the council at the last meeting of the council, Brazil says she used the right sorrowfully, but it was inevitable.

NO LIQUOR AT PROM.

Mr. Fitzgerald neither denied nor affirmed the statement that some diplomas had been withheld from scholars on the party.

"Ten or twelve respectable and trustworthy parents were at the junior prom," the superintendent continued. "There was absolutely no liquor at that affair. Whatever liquor was obtained was obtained after the 'prom.'"

"There were young girls in the party who are refined little girls. They were not aware of the fact that liquor was to be a part of the party. For that reason I have investigated thoroughly. Absolutely no students have been expelled from school."

Following this statement Superintendent Fitzgerald admitted that several expulsions were being considered.

ARREST AT THE BEACH.

Arriving at Nantasket, it was stated by officials, some of the youths, said to be outsiders and not students of Latin School, went into a cottage. Here they were placed under arrest for trespassing.

The entire affair took on a serious aspect today, as it became almost certain that a complete investigation of the activities of the students at Cambridge High and Latin would be made.

NAMES WITHHELD.

Because of the uncertainty upon the part of officials as to whom among the members of the party were actually to blame for the condition which existed, the names of the students are being withheld at this time by the Boston Evening American.

Although emphatic denial was made that liquor was at the Junior "Prom" special precautions will be taken at tonight's senior reception to prevent a recurrence of the affair which has split the school into two factions.

Approximately 1,000 persons attended the meeting. It was stated that about $220,000 would be realized from the assessment and that the money would be used to buy the newspaper plant, valued at $175,000, pay current debts and allow stockholders to start operation of the business with a clean slate.

U. S. FACES BIG LOSS IN REVENUE REFUNDS

Investigation Is Started Into Circumstances Involving the Fixing of Fees

Washington, June 11 (Universal).—The government faces a possible loss of $100,000,000 as a result of unusual circumstances in fixing taxes for the hide and leather industry. An investigation is being made.

Boston concerns involved include: The Standard Kid Company, Ruby Kid Company, and Thomas Kelly.

A loss of between $15,000,000 and $20,000,000 has already been sustained, it was revealed, in what are known as "the goat skin cases." Through an unprecedented ruling this industry was allowed to change its inventories, which secured for them the refunds reaching that vast total.

INVENTORIES SCALED DOWN.

Inventories for the Income Tax Division were made December 31, 1919, when the price of goat skins was at a high level. The dealers were allowed, by "an unprecedented order" to compute their taxes on the basis of prices prevailing some eight months later when the bottom had dropped out of the market.

The Standard Kid Company, Boston, and the Wilmington Leather Company, Wilmington, Del., in one case asked for and, it is understood, obtained refunds of over $1,000,000. Others understood to have profited by the ruling, covering a period of four years, are: Amalgamated Leather Company, Keystone Leather Company, Newcastle Leather Company, John L. Evans Company, William Badenkoff, Wilmington, Ruby Kid Company, Horace C. Beckins, Philadelphia; Thomas Kelly, Boston and Jardine Mathison, New York.

HUNTING FOR FRAUD.

The legal department of the Internal Revenue Bureau is studying these cases in an effort to discover if there was fraud. If so, it will immediately launch suits to recover what is due, as well as criminal action. If there is no fraud, the treasury faces the serious eventuality of applying the ruling in the "goat skin cases" to practically every other raw material industry. This would mean a refund in taxes to the leather industry, as distinguished from the goat skin trade, of approximately $80,000,000 of dollars. The leather industry has already launched a drive in this direction.

FIRE DISCLOSES 3 BIG STILLS

Three stills, one with capacity of 1,000 gallons, were uncovered today when a fire which drove out a family of seven from an adjoint house, destroyed a three-story barn on the Wilmington road, Burlington. Several explosions occurred during the fire, which razed unchecked until the barn was reduced to ashes.

The barn was owned by Eustachio Andrulli, Everett barber, who, according to Fire Chief Pellick of Burlington, said that he had rented it to two Chelsea men. William Andrulli, brother of Eustachio, who lives in an adjacent house, was forced to flee with his wife and five children, as flames swept the barn, 50 feet away.

The Burlington fire department answered a call, but was unable to fight the fire because of lack of water.

2 Killed by Train

Buffalo, N. Y., June 11.—Joseph V. Pellien and Henry Stradtman, railroad men, were killed when a passenger train struck their machine.

Body Identified

Springfield, June 11.—The body of a man found in the Connecticut river yesterday was identified as that of Daniel J. Shea, former city employe.

JONES' CAR HAD 60-MILE SPEED

Woodsville, N. H., June 11 (A.P.)—Horr the prosecution and the defense rested their cases this forenoon in the trial of Judge Fred A. Jones of Lebanon, charged with manslaugh, second degree, in connection with a fatal motor accident last January.

Testimony to the effect that he had been told Judge Jones' machine was going 60 miles an hour before the accident, in which Mrs. Mildred Presley was killed, was given today by an insurance adjuster called in rebuttal by the State.

Ramos, Judge Jones and Mrs. Olga Viecuse, the survivors of the wreck, were recalled by the defense. Ramos contradicted testimony by Robert H. Loomis, a Dartmouth student, concerning the sobriety of the party at a lunch room in Hanover before the accident.

Mrs. Viecuse, who was quoted by a nurse as saying, "we had too much wine in the party," denied that she had said that other members of the party were drunk.

STOLEN AUTO OF EX-MAYOR OF LYNN SOON FOUND

The automobile of ex-Mayor Harland McPhetres, stolen from the driveway of his home, was recovered today in South Boston before McPhetres knew it was missing.

The car was found abandoned undamaged on Summer street extension by Patrolman Joseph Crowley of Athens street police station. By its registration it was identified as the property of McPhetres. When the former Mayor was notified he insisted his car was outside the house until a glance from the window proved he was wrong.

B. & M. SPECIAL OFFICER BEATEN IN SOMERVILLE

Special Officer H. W. Davies of the Boston & Maine Railroad reported to the Somerville police today that he was "slugged" by four men as he was arresting two who had been throwing stones at windows in the Mystic Junction yards. The officer was called to the yards by Yardmaster Reynolds and was just starting away with his two prisoners when the four men crept up behind, felled Davies and rescued the pair.

Major-General Robert C. Davis, U. S. A., adjutant-general, arrived in Boston today and will spend the day looking over the First Corps Area and C. M. T. C.

INSPECT FIRST CORPS AREA

Major-General Robert C. Davis, U. S. M., adjutant-general of the U. S. Army, arrived today on the Federal Express from Washington for his annual inspection of the First Corps Area.

General Davis was met by Brigadier-General John E. Woodward, adjutant-general of the First Corps Area, and escorted to the Copley Plaza, where he will stay during his visit.

General Davis will make the routine inspection of the recruiting and C. M. T. C. departments of the First Corps Area, returning to Washington tonight.

$40,000 RUM IN N. SHORE RAID

Rockport, June 11.—Choice liquors, smuggled ashore in this section of Cape Ann while a decoy boat lured coast guards in the direction of the Maine coast, were seized by prohibition officers and members of the State police patrol ashore.

The liquor, $40,000 worth of it, was found in the cellar of Harry Womson's house, near Great Hill, and is now in the Appraisers' Stores, Boston.

The officers charge the liquor was smuggled ashore after the C180, fastest speedboat in this section, had run by the coast guard crew, and was sped. This apparently was what the C-180 men desired, for the speedboat, without lights, sped off up the Maine coast, and, instead of putting forth its best efforts, managed to keep just comfortably ahead of the coast guard. A shot from the coast guard speed boat disabled the C-180, but the shore was near and its crew escaped. The C-180 was found to be empty.

With the coast guard out of the way the smuggling proceeded without hitch and, but for a tip the prohibition agents received, the liquor probably would have found its way into the cellars of some exclusive North Shore homes. The cases were still wet when they were seized by the raiders.

A thorough investigation of this daring smuggling act is being made by Owen McKenna, representing Collector of Internal Revenue Lufkin.

SMOKING BAN AT RADCLIFFE

Once again Radcliffe has set the seal of disapproval on smoking. This time the student body went as far as prohibiting it in the halls and residences at the college. The decision was made at a mass meeting of students in Barnard Hall. It is the final decree.

The subject was first brought up a few weeks ago when a preliminary vote banned smoking from the college buildings. Then the issue was brought up again on the question of girls smoking in halls of their residences. Devotees of the weed will now be forced to find some quiet place to do their smoking.

TACNA-ARICA PLEBESCITE TO BREAK UP IN A ROW

Arica, Chile, June 11 (A.P.).—An early breakup of the Tacna-Arica plebiscite activities here is foreseen in consequence of the resolution introduced by General Lassiter, charging Chile with blocking a fair plebiscite by failure to carry out its obligations under President Coolidge's arbitral award. If the resolution is carried at the next meeting of the plebiscitary commission, it is pointed out, there will be little further for the commission to do except wind up proceedings.

General Lassiter's resolution, introduced as a substitute for a Chilean motion demanding the date for the plebiscite be fixed, is understood to declare a plebiscite is impossible while guarantees are lacking for the safety of Peruvians.

This also will be the first honorary degree awarded the Crown Prince in America, and he will have in his audience the heads of colleges throughout New England, presidents of local educational institutions, and principals and members of faculties of high schools.

Drys in Protest in Providence July 4 Parade

Providence, R. I., June 11 (I. N. S.).—Providence Coolidge and Attorney-General Sargent had on their desks today a protest from the anti-saloon league against the proposed anti-Volstead section of the Mummers' parade here in connection with the municipal celebration July 4 of the sesqui-centennial anniversary of the signing of the Declaration of Independence.

"Cannot the Federal power intervene to prevent such desecrations of the day?" asked the message.

NEW CRISIS FOR BRIAND REGIME

Paris, June 11 (A.P.).—The political firmament again—is becoming cloudy.

Henri Franklin Bouillon is trying to convert Premier Briand to oppose ratification of the American Debt Agreement, and announced his intention to precipitate the question by interpellating the government, provoking debate that may end disastrously.

On the other hand, many deputies are furious at the rejection of a salary increase, for which they blame the government.

Criticism also is coming from Andre Tardieu of the Foreign Affairs committee, who is forming a group in the Chamber.

The motion by the Socialists against ratification of the Washington debt settlement appears to have awakened the opposition in various groups.

Many of the Socialists hold that carrying out the agreement as it now stands would subject the country periodically to money crisis.

CLOSE FIGHT ON FARM RELIEF

Washington, June 11 (A.P.)—The Senate tide apparently has turned against the equalization fee plan of farm relief, and its advocates now concede the vote, expected next week, will be close.

Proponents of the McNary measure, embodying the principles of the Haugen bill voted down by the House, had counted on support from Democrats, but leaders of that party expect most of their colleagues to oppose the plan.

The Democratic objection is that enactment would establish tariff protection as a permanent government policy, and the argument that it would help Southern cotton producers apparently has little weight with the Senators from that section.

Senator Robinson, Democratic floor leader, is preparing a substitute bill which its sponsors hope will gain the support of Democratic and other opponents of the McNary measure.

ROME TO HAVE 44-STORY $10,950,000 BUILDING

Rome, June 11 (A.P.)—Rome is to have a 44-story skyscraper, if the plans of Mario Pulanti, Argentine architect, go through.

Pulanti was received today by Pope Pius and described his plans, which provide for the inclusion within the building of a church. The structure will be the tallest in Rome and will cost about $10,950,000.

GINGHAM GIRLS AT METROPOLITAN

Gus Edwards has produced a real hot weather treat —The Gingham Review, which comes to the Metropolitan next week. The picture shows Florence Foreman, one of the girls, in her gingham outfit suitable for the good old Summertime.

BRITAIN SCORES SOVIET FUND

London, June 11 (A.P.).—The British government has sent a sharp note to Moscow protesting against the endeavors of the Soviet to send money to Great Britain during the recent general strike.

The note sets forth the belief that this money was intended to foster a movement to bring about a change of government in Great Britain.

The note declares that definite proof now is in the hands of the British government that a share of the money offered the Trade Union Congress from Moscow during the general strike came from the Soviet government itself. This action, the note states, is regarded as unjustifiable interference in the internal affairs of the country and a violation of the Anglo-Russian trade agreement.

A second note, dealing with the money the Soviet is sending to the British Miners' Federation, is being considered by the Cabinet and will probably be forwarded to Moscow soon. The British government in this case also contends that part of the money is contributed by the Soviet government.

HEIRESS ENDS 'LONELY LIFE'

New York, June 11. (I.N.S.)—Loneliness for her girl chum who married about a month ago was believed to be the motive that impelled Miss Jean MacKenzie, twenty-eight, an heiress, to committ suicide in her apartment by drinking poison.

She was the daughter of the late James S. MacKenzie, a large stockholder in the Singer Sewing Machine Company.

Until recently Miss MacKenzie had lived in the apartment with Miss Clay Schuyler, a former schoolmate. Recently Miss Schuyler married a naval officer. Since the marriage Miss MacKenzie had seemed lonely and despondent, friends say.

2 DIE AS ENGINE FALLS IN CREEK

Raleigh, N. C., June 11 (A.P.).—Two trainmen were reported killed today when the engine and tender of a Norfolk Southern passenger train crashed through a burning trestle over Chicod Creek, six miles north of Greenville.

Two other trainmen were injured. No passengers were believed to be badly hurt.

Noel in Asylum

Trenton, N. J., June 11 (A.P.).—Harrison W. Noel, saved from electrocution by the court after he had been condemned for killing Raymond Pierce, a taxicab driver, was removed from the death house at the State Prison here today and taken to the Newark asylum.

COSTS 'CHINKS' $1500 TO GET IN

St. Albans, Vt., June 11 (A.P.).—The price of smuggling Chinese from Canada into the United States has jumped to $1,500 a head, James L. Ford, chief inspector in charge of the Newport Immigration Office, has advised officials here.

He said he obtained information regarding the advance from six Chinese captured by the border patrol. Each Chinese is obliged to sign a contract to pay $1,500 for his safe delivery in the United States, safe arrival being a provision of the contract, Mr. Ford explained.

Often the alien is forced to work for years at a small salary to repay the financiers, usually wealthy Chinese who are legal residents of the United States.

BEATEN AND ROBBED OF $15,000 IN WHISKEY DEAL

Baltimore, Md., June 11 (A.P.)—Michael Funicaliio of Brooklyn was attacked in his room in the Emerson Hotel and robbed of $15,000 by one of three men with whom he was negotiating to buy 700 cases of whiskey, he told police. Edward Kimball of New York, identified by Funicaliio as one of the men, thus not his assailant, was arrested. Preliminaries of the deal were arranged in New York weeks ago, John P. Costello," Funicaliio said, but consummation was scheduled for Baltimore, where the liquor was to be delivered.

STATE PRISON CROWDED, SCHOOL UTILIZED

A boom has hit Boston's exclusive Prison Point section and the housing situation, at best none too good, has reached the point where close study is necessary, and therefore a school room has been put into use.

Hendry House, that big gray stone mansion where so many distinguished visitors have stopped—or been stopped—in the last several decades, is full to the last barred window and grating, and the attendants are at their wits' ends for accommodations.

This is especially so in view of the fact that another distinguished guest is expected soon in the person of Charles Ponzi.

Warden Hendry's State Prison is housing 871 prisoners, only eleven short of its record number, and with only 834 cells available, the school room in the South Wing has been converted into a dormitory with thirty beds.

MR. BROOKHART, Senator from Iowa, thinks it would be wise to limit earnings of capital to 5 per cent., and put control of government "entirely in the hands of Labor."

Ideas are one thing, carrying them out is another.

NOT LONG AGO Capital thought it would be a good idea to limit Labor's earnings to one dollar a day. A President of the United States once complained at a public banquet that you couldn't hire a good workman for less than $100 a year and his board.

Labor is not limited to one dollar a day, however. Capital won't be limited to 5 per cent., and Labor will not control government unless it has more brains than the governing class. If it had more brains than the governing class, it would be governing now.

Those that govern, from big financiers to little politicians put in office by big financiers, were not born in power, THEY GOT THERE. These are sad facts.

AT THE SAME TIME International Capital, trying to push this country into the World Court and League of Nations, will please notice that Mr. Brookhart's election is one result of their foolish effort.

High finance and its corporations are powerful. But the vote is more powerful, and the people may not always remain too dull to use it. Ninety-six Brookharts in the Senate would make a difference, and could be sent there if the people chose to send them.

A PETRIFIED human brain is found near Moscow, exciting scientists. This brain, undoubtedly genuine, mercifully petrified that modern men might study ancient men, was discovered in perfect condition, with a fragment of another brain near it, both beside the tooth of a mammoth in a bed of white clay.

What did that brain think, as it looked at the mammoth and other great beasts, sharped its little flints, hurled them through the air, and ran for its life?

With what strange superstitions did that ancient brain explain lightning, thunder and the wind howling in the cave?

It certainly was not much more superstitious than our average modern brain, of which you may truly quote Voltaire's words in his chapter on Mohammed in the Encyclopaedia: "It is always wise to tell the vulgar the things that are most unbelievable."

THE GREAT PROBLEM of the world is DISTRIBUTION. You are reminded of it by Marcus Loew's purchase of three more theatres in New York, added to several hundred, scattered over the country. Big concerns buy theatres, gasoline stations, cigar stores, food and drug stores. Production is solved; DISTRIBUTION is the problem.

The race for theatre ownership carried on by Loew, Zukor-Lasky, William Fox, Balaban and Katz, and a dozen others is cheering to owners of "suitable sites."

FIFTEEN AMERICAN WOMEN were presented at the British Court yesterday. They wore long trains, were forbidden to wear dresses up to their knees in front, wore long veils, diamonds, pearls and becoming blushes, real or painted. After long practice of the highly democratic art of courtesying before royalty, some did it well, some badly.

It's over now and they are happy.

And Great Britain has smiled once more at America's democratic "indifference to royalty."

DR. VINCENT, head of the Rockefeller Foundation, says young physicians should study psychiatry. Every human being should study psychiatry, which comes from a Greek word meaning the soul, or mind.

If you had to deal with an automobile, you would study engine, carburetor, battery supplying sparks. You wouldn't examine the upholstery or the wheels.

CARDINAL WILL LEAVE MONDAY

By JAMES WALSH

Cardinal O'Connell will leave Boston next Monday for Buffalo, where he will join the more than 500 pilgrims who will make up the official Boston diocese party under his leadership on board the steamer South American on Thursday night, and proceed immediately to Chicago to take part in the great International Eucharistic Congress.

According to a statement issued at the chancellor's office, "it is the wish of the Cardinal that all those unable to assist personally at the services of the congress at Chicago will do everything in their power to participate spiritually in those devotions to our Lord in the blessed sacrament by their presence at mass during the four days of the congress by receiving holy communion and by making visits to the blessed sacrament to testify by their acts of personal devotion their adhesion to the great Catholic spirit of love for the blessed sacrament which is the driving force of the whole congress."

On the return trip from Chicago the Cardinal and the pilgrims will stop at Midland, Ontario, long enough for His Eminence to consecrate the shrine to the Jesuit martyrs of North America at that place. The Cardinal will return immediately to Boston after the party arrives at Buffalo on the way back home.

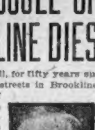
M. DRISCOLL OF BROOKLINE DIES

Michael Driscoll, for fifty years superintendent of streets in Brookline and member of the Brookline school committee, died at his home at No. 9 Kent street, Brookline, today.



Michael Driscoll

Mr. Driscoll had been in ill health for some time. Last year he asked to be relieved from the duties of street superintendent, and had been acting since in an advisory capacity.

In tribute to him the flag on the Brookline City Hall is at half-staff. Daniel G. Lacy, successor to the office of street superintendent, expresses his death as "an irreparable loss to the community."

The Michael Driscoll School in Brookline had been named in his honor. He is survived by a brother, two sons and four daughters.

TWO BODIES ARE FOUND ON SUNKEN RIVER BOAT

Jersey City, N. J., June 11 (A.P.).—Diver Harry Rinerson found the body of Mrs. Lynn Hoag and that of her three-year-old daughter in the forward cabin of the steamer Washington Irving, which sank in the Hudson River on June 1. The location of the bodies made it impossible to bring them to the surface, but today Rinerson and other divers will try again. It is believed the woman went to the cabin in search of two other children who were rescued.

BOY SWIMMER LEAVES CLOTHES ON BANK

The next time Sidney Raill, ten-year-old Melrose boy, goes swimming, it will be with the express understanding that he don all his clothing before returning home.

Sidney gave the Melrose police an anxious two hours when they found a suit of clothes on the bank of Ell Pond and deduced that somewhere had drowned. After dragging the pond without success it was learned that the clothes were abandoned by the boy when a thunder squall broke while he was in swimming.

Wearing only his bathing suit the boy pedalled his bicycle to his home at No. 529 Lebanon street and reported to his mother that his outer garments had been stolen.

N. E. EXPORT CLUB PLANS MEETINGS OUTSIDE HUB

Two innovations, a non-resident membership group and a policy of holding meetings outside Metropolitan Boston, were announced today by the New England Export Club, a branch of the Boston Chamber of Commerce. The club has a membership of 118, a growth of more than 300 per cent. in a year.

Tentative plans have been made for Springfield and Providence meetings. The new membership group is designed to aid those New England export executives too far distant from Boston to attend the regular monthly meetings of the club. Victor M. Cutter is president of the club.

'DRYS' DEMAND 'TEETH' IN LAW

Washington, June 11 (A.P.).—Enactment not only of the civil service and prohibition bills, given preferred status by the Senate Republican steering committee, but of the measure to put more teeth in the Volstead act, is advocated in a statement issued today by the legislative committee of the Anti-Saloon League.

The latter, known as the Goff bill, has been approved by both the Senate and House judiciary committees, but the Senate steering committee omitted it from its lineup for preadjournment action, some Republican leaders feeling that, if brought up, it would cause such a fight that adjournment would be delayed considerably beyond the end of this month.

The Boston Girl of 1926 Will Be Picked Soon So Hurry Along Photos

Have you a dress that appears well on you? And a little enterprise?

Then you are on the threshold of an opportunity—a very great distinction, selection as The Boston Girl of 1926.

But without a little enterprise, the door stands barred against you. For how can a group of foremost artists, style and carriage and posture authorities select you as The Boston Girl of 1926 unless your photograph is before them?

The great honor of selection as the girl modishly attired, gracefully erect and dignified, the ensemble of whose clothes and poise and personality best represents the typical up to date young woman, is yours, perhaps, if your photograph is before the judges. Send one in and see. Or come in and have one made. There is no delay and no charge of any sort.

The three modish maidens whose likenesses are published are as genuine as they are graceful and stylish. Their enterprise, like yours, may bring them great returns.

Some three girls of this attractive type are to be awarded respectively first, a silver laurel wreath and $500 in gold; second, a miniature of the silver laurel and an evening gown valued at $200 or $300 in gold; third, a miniature of the silver laurel and a street ensemble valued at $100 or $100 in gold.

The judges who will choose The Boston Girl of 1926 are Mr. L. W. Sargent, director of the Sargent School for Physical Education; Mr. Royal Bailey Farnum, director art education Massachusetts; Massachusetts Art School; Mr. Cyrus Dallin, distinguished sculptor, and Miss Lucy Park, associate editor of Harper's Bazaar.

If you were chosen by this distinguished committee as the typical Boston Girl of 1926, you can imagine how joyous you would be.

Relatives and friends of smartly dressed young ladies are invited to assist The Boston Evening American in the quest for The Boston Girl of 1926. Send in photographs identifying them and describing the clothing worn. Please add telephone number.

FROM SOMERVILLE

SOMERVILLE AGAIN
Miss Ruth Holmgren is wearing a tan and brown sport coat with brown moufflon fur collar, a new block print scarf, blue taffeta and chenille trimmed gloves, tan sport hat with brown grosgrain ribbon band, rose beige stockings

OF HUB PROPER
Miss Rosalie Howley is sporting a black satin cape dress with white inserts adorned with red buttons, small black hat with ostrich feather, white chiffon hose, white shoes.

The Most Wonderful Book in the World

MORE than nine million Bibles were sold or distributed in 1925.

Would you not love to have companion volumes to help you discover the treasures in that Wonderful Book?

SWEDENBORG

explained the Bible's practical application to daily life; how it describes the life hereafter; what the Bible parables mean when spiritually interpreted.

His theological works—as traced by himself—have been published by the Houghton Mifflin Co. in most modern translation from the original Latin, in the Rotch Edition of 32 volumes.

The first twenty give the spiritual sense of Genesis and Exodus as understood in Heaven; and volumes 26, 27, 28 give likewise the spiritual sense of Revelation.

Volume 29, Marriage Love, views from the union of the Divine Love and the Divine Wisdom the Law of Sex throughout all creation. It shows the crown and jewel of the Christian Religion, the union of one with one only. Price $2.00.

Volumes 30, 31, 32, contain a full statement of the True Christian Religion as revealed from Heaven. $3.00 the set.

The whole 32 volumes in half-morocco at $125; in buckram, $40.

The following are the best introductory books to the Revelations of Swedenborg. They are in large print, bound in buckram, and contain from 260 to 285 pages.

TITLES	PRICE
HEAVEN AND HELL from things heard and seen	$1.25
Angelic Wisdom Concerning—
DIVINE PROVIDENCE, which governs the Universe and the Heavens and the Hells, and the least as well as the greatest of all things in creation; and in the everyday life of men.	$1.25
DIVINE LOVE AND WISDOM, the profoundest book and revelation concerning God and his Creation ever written, first published in Latin at Amsterdam 1763; along with this is the "Intercourse Between the Soul and the Body" first published in Latin at London 1769.	$1.25
Price of all three at one time, including postage	$2.75

Who Was Swedenborg?

Emanuel Swedenborg, the son of a bishop, was the great Swedish scientist, philosopher and theologian, whose vast range caused Emerson to term him the mastodon of scholars and Dr. Parkes Cadman to recently name him the universal genius. Officially connected, by appointment of the King, with the great mining industry of Sweden, he mastered all the sciences of his time, and wrote the most useful books on metallurgy, minerals, geology, astronomy, and the human brain. His life search was for the human soul. How his spiritual senses were opened, after he was 50 years of age, that he might reveal the human soul, the life after death, and the Bible itself, may be read in the above named, uplifting, useful books.

Daughters of 1812 got behind once more and added $12 to contribution already sent in.

Women Again Winners of Picture Prizes

GIMME A KISS

Second prize goes to Mrs. E. Simpson of East Dedham.

Two women carried off the honors and the prizes today in the Boston Evening American Unusual Picture Contest, continuing the impressive showing made by women entrants since the beginning of the competition.

First prize, a pair of $5 seats for the annual boxing carnival of the Dorchester Pilgrim Post, American Legion, at Braves Field on June 25, goes to Mrs. G. P. Crossman of No. 1749 Commonwealth avenue for a picture entitled, "A Young Milkmaid."

Mrs. E. Simpson of No. 115 Colburn street, East Dedham, wins second prize, consisting of a pair of $3 seats for the big outdoor show.

Daily prizes are offered by the Unusual Picture Editor for pictures you have tucked away in your treasured photo album or snapshots you may make especially for the present contest.

Women are carrying off many of the prizes in spite of the large number of pictures sent in by entrants of the opposite sex, and it behooves the males to get busy if they are to get the majority of the choice carnival seats offered as rewards.

Photos of pets, persons or scenes are proper food for the Unusual Picture Editor and every picture submitted will be considered on the merits of its subject matter without regard to expertness of photography, so long as it is reasonably clear. The contest closes June 19, at 6 P. M., and the lists of winners will be announced on Monday, June 21.

Put an end to all your worried searching—look in the Classified Ads.

2 WOUNDED IN ITALIAN DUEL

Milan, Italy, June 11 (A.P.).—A furious sabre duel here today ended with both of the adversaries seriously wounded.

The duelists were Giuseppe Brunati, director of the weekly newspaper Sebastide and Umberto Fracchia, director of Literary Fair, another weekly. Their meeting came after a heated exchange of political opinion in the columns of their papers.

The first two assaults were fought without bloodshed, but at the third Brunati was backed across the right shoulder. He slashed Fracchia's nose and right cheek.

MME. DUX FELL IN LOVE IN THE STOCKYARDS

Chicago, June 11 (I.N.S.).—"I fell in love with him an hour after we had met," said Mme. Claire Dux, famous opera singer, today in speaking of her engagement to Charles M. Swift, millionaire packer. Radiantly happy over contemplation of her marriage, she continued: "And I met him in the most unromantic place in the world—the stockyards.

"I had gone there to sing, and was invited to a luncheon. There were many distinguished men at the table, but one of them fascinated me the moment I saw him. I had not caught his name in the hubbub of introductions.

"After we had left the table I confided to a girl friend that I had fallen in love. It was she who told me the name of the man I was to marry."

THE GIRL OF TODAY is the big theme in Beatrice Burton's new serial which begins next Monday in the Boston Evening American. You liked Burton's "GILDED KISSES" and her "PIRATE OF HEARTS." You'll be wild over this. Remember, next Monday.

MRS. HEARST VIEWS CASTLE

(London, June 11. (Universal)—St. Donats Castle, in the vale of Glamorgan, recently acquired by William Randolph Hearst, was visited by Mrs. Hearst for the first time.

After a lengthy inspection of the castle, which is the delight of archaeologists and antiquaries, and the most picturesque and best preserved of the mediaeval fortresses of Britain, Mrs. Hearst said:

"It is the most romantic place I have ever seen and most wonderful."

Mrs. Hearst passed from room to room and from turret to turret, over the battlements and walks and then made a brief visit to the famed gardens.

"You may be sure Mr. Hearst will be careful to preserve all the old features of St. Donats. We know already how the Welsh regard these fine old places and we shall do everything to assimilate the atmosphere of St. Donats."

URGES COLLEGE MASONIC CLUBS

Philadelphia, June 10 (A.P.)—A plan to inject into the National League of Masonic Clubs objects of service in addition to social activities was made today by the president, Charles A. MacHenry.

In presenting his report to the twenty-first annual convention in the Benjamin Franklin Hotel Mr MacHenry also urged the expansion of Masonic clubs in colleges and industries.

"The league has waited for clubs to ask to join," said Mr. MacHenry. "This does not make for rapid expansion. It is time we went out and by organized effort created clubs in the many industrial plants where none exists."

Fireman Killed

Wilkes Barre, Pa., June 11 (A.P.)—One fireman, Lieutenant Eyleman was killed and several others were overcome by smoke today, when fire destroyed a three-story building on South Main street.

BETTY ALDEN'S COMMENT ON SOCIETY

ARLINGTON STREET CHURCH, WITH its high backed pews and similar marks of early America's simplicity and austerity in decoration, was the scene of a quiet wedding today, when Miss Pauline Bell Dillingham became Mrs. Charles Lasseman Ward

THE BRIDE HAD BUT TWO ATTENDANTS, Mrs. Kendal Fenton (she was Miss Dorothy Allen) as matron of honor and Miss Dorothy M. Washburn as maid of honor. Mr. [illegible] was chief attendant to Roger C. Fenn, of Concord.

THE REV. CHRISTOPHER R. ELIOT read the marriage lines at the [illegible] candles, and gladioli and peonies in fragrant profusion against the dark green of cedar trees.

SIX USHERS SEATED THE SMALL wedding company. Dr. J. Winthrop Peabody of Syracuse and a host set, including Lloyd E. Raymond, Philip H. Morse and Allen Tw[illegible] Adam B. Fose, a New Yorker and Victor W. Kn[illegible]th, of Springfield, completed the corps

MR. WARD, a Harvard 1917 man with war service to his credit, is connected with the Middlesex School in Concord, and will take his bride to [illegible] in that pretty little town [illegible] northward where Colonial [illegible] rule.

NO FORMAL INVITATIONS went out for the ceremonial and there was a reception, owing to the recent death of the bride's father, the Rev. Percy Dillingham. The Dillingham home is at the top of Chestnut street, at No 5

A GREAT-GRANDDAUGHTER of a Boston merchant prince, Miss Christa Havemeyer is an important bride of ten now when she marries Amos Lyman Snyder Brewster at Quogue, [illegible] the New Jersey country place of her parents, the Henry O. Havemeyers.

IF THE DAY IS FINE a lovely ceremonial on the lawn is in order, followed by a large reception. Miss Natalie Winslow, eldest of the three girls in the Adam Lapsley Winslow family, is maid of honor, of course Miss Havemeyer.

MRS. WINSLOW, was Theodora Havemeyer, and is aunt to the bride on the paternal side. The late Charles R. Greene, East India merchant prince a widely known Bostonian, is an ancestor of the bride. And there is otherwise a distinguished family tree.

IT INCLUDES THE LATE Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Havemeyer, of New York, the Augustus Whitings of New York and Newport; and the late Chevalier de Cossey who, many, many years ago, came to New York as the representative of the Austrian monarch.

THE BRIDE-TO-[illegible] is [illegible] Eugene T. de Rivola, whose [illegible] French armies who served [illegible] Philadelphia Miss Ethel M. Padelford New York and Newport; [illegible] his mother and Nelson P. Brown, Indianapolis, [illegible] are father.

Miss Ida and Miss Ellen Mason [illegible] kindly hostesses The Jamesea, "Commodore" and Mrs. Arthur Curtiss James, came to Newport on the Aloha to make ready for their Royal Highnesses of Sweden.

A GARDEN PARTY FOR the Prince and Princess at Beacon Hill House, chief function of the Newport visitation, is sure to be a gala occasion. The genial Commodore is a prince of hosts at Beacon Hill House a Newport show place.

DINNER IN HONOR of their Royal Highnesses in another James hospitality. Cards have gone out to the highly placed, including Mrs. Hamilton McKay Twombly and Miss Ruth Vanderbilt Twombly, Mr and Mrs. Elliott Bradley, and Dr. and Mrs. Preston Pope Satterwhite.

GENERAL CORNELIUS VANDERBILT and Mrs. Vanderbilt will give a dinner at The Breakers for the visiting Royalties and so altogether their Newport stay makes a very bright star in the social firmament.

STAGE ENDS OLD CHURCH FEUD

New York, June 11 (A.P.).—Representatives of church and stage have settled an age old feud and today face the world as brothers pledged to provide the nation with clean plays.

They broke bread together and formed the Church and Drama Association, pledged to purify without sterilizing the legitimate stage.

Prominent players, prelates, playwrights and producers dined at the Plaza Hotel and discussed co-operation, while Mayor Walker instructed the corporation counsel to aid District Attorney Banton in closing up Broadway by legal means.

Meanwhile Broadway is experiencing its annual house cleaning to the profit of some producers who get publicity through condemnation of their shows.

"The Bunk of 1926" was condemned to death, but reopened under an injunction, and on the night it returned from exile played to standing room only.

John Cort did his bit to clean up the theatres by closing his Cort Theatre to "Beyond Youth," a sex drama with a white woman and a negro as leading characters, after its opening Monday.

Later Mr. Cort relented and agreed to let the play reopen with deletions.

SEC. WORK HUNG IN EFFIGY

Phoenix, Ariz., June 11. (A.P.)—Reports here today told of the hanging in effigy of Dr. Hubert Work, Secretary of the Interior, Wednesday night by homesteaders in the Paradise and Deer valleys, a part of the Verde river irrigation and power district.

Answered by Hope Eden

The Boston Evening American today presents the first of a series of answers to the questions asked of Miss Hope Eden, mystic, who is now appearing at the New Columbia Theatre.

Questions mailed to the Boston Evening American will be answered by Miss Eden.

Lillian Welch—You seem in doubt as to the advisability of selling that store. I would not advise it, as business will improve during the next six months.

Albert D. Scott—While you have the qualifications for becoming a fighter you have not the necessary stick-to-it-iveness. I would advise you remaining in your present position.

Mrs. G. Davis—At present financial conditions will not permit this trip. However, during the latter part of the Summer you will be in a position to go.

Louise—Your question reads: "Louise with boy friend. Is everything gonna be all right?" Yes, Louise everything is "gonna" be all right.

Dorothy—You are asking if W. V.'s intentions are serious. Hadn't you better wait for W. V. to tell you so himself?

Alice—You should be living with your father. You are young, irresponsible, thoughtless and rather hot-headed. You must learn to revere old age. Whether you live with your father again will depend upon you and your actions.

The RED LAMP by Mary Roberts Rinehart

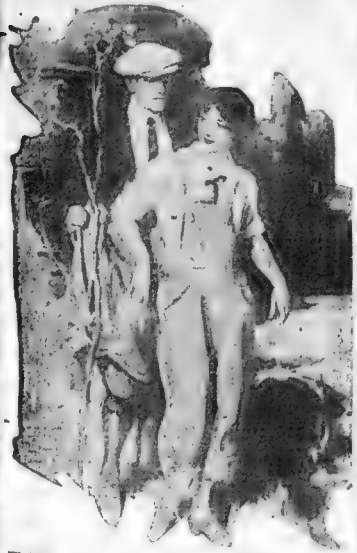
Mysteries of a House Where Ghosts Walk Revealed by Great Woman Writer



Illustrations from paintings done to title, especially for this serial by W. D. Stevens

Edith, despite protests, put on overalls and crawled into the pipe. Holliday hovered over her before she attempted her stunt

Professor William A. Porter becomes owner of Twin Hollows, a country and shore estate of his deceased uncle, Horace Porter. Porter lives with his wife, Jane, and niece, Edith, at the university in which he teaches. Jane manifests every evidence of mediumistic ability. She "sees" many things that are inexplicable. The Professor determines to occupy the mansion left by his uncle. It has a neighborhood reputation of being haunted. Jane objects to living in the house and compromises in an agreement to live in the Lodge. Warren Halliday, sweetheart of Edith, comes to Twin Hollows and lives in the boathouse.

Then begin a series of the most marvelous ghostly happenings. The Professor believes that his uncle may have been murdered. Other crimes committed are blamed by the neighborhood on the ghost inhabitants of the Twin Hollow mansion. Circumstances entangle the Professor in an apparent indication of guilt. The Red Lamp figures in these manifestations.

Detective Benchley enters the case. He evidently believes the Professor responsible for the mysterious crimes.

The Professor rents the house to a mysterious Mr. Bethel, who has a secretary named Gordon. Dr. Hayward, town physician, is added to the number who suspect Porter. Mr. and Mrs. Livingstone call on the Porters. Mrs. Livingstone reveals mysterious happenings in Uncle Horace's house.

Mr. Bethel and his secretary arrive. Bethel and the professor discuss the mysterious crimes that are stirring the village.

Garroway, guard, slain. Body found in bay, held down by Dr. Hayward's anchor. Doctor acts queerly. Suspicion is shifting.

CHAPTER XVI

July 17th

I DO not like young Gordon. He has little enough time to himself—only I gather, an hour or so after luncheon, while Mr. Bethel sleeps—but he spends that here, if possible.

Edith snubs him, but he is as thick-skinned as one of the porpoises which rolls itself in the bay.

"Why, if you're so clever," I overheard her today, "don't you go out and do something? Use your brains."

"It takes brains to do what I'm

YALE INSTRUCTOR LOSES NEW JOB THROUGH POEM

Missoula, Mont., June 11 (A.P.) Because he was the author of a poem "Soft Lulls Women" appearing in the May issue of "The New Masses," Hal Saunders White, instructor of English at Yale University, will not join the faculty at Montana University's Summer School.

President C. H. Clapp said if Mr. White did not resign voluntarily his resignation would be asked for. Dr. Clapp's statement was made after he received a telegram from postal authorities in Washington, D. C., stating that White's poem, along with "other matter," had been made unmailable.

NEW FAITH SHOWN IN N.E. BOOM

President Lawrence of Boston Praises Get-Together Spirit at Burlington, Vt., Council

Burlington, Vt., June 11.—A spirit of optimism and co-operation was voiced today by President John S. Lawrence of Boston at the opening of the two day quarterly meeting of the New England Council at Hotel Vermont here.

The council, which has a membership of three from each of the six States of New England, represents industrial, agricultural and commercial leadership of the territory. President Lawrence presided at the session. Robert W. Warren of the Federal Reserve Bank of Boston acted as speaker, was prevented from attending through illness.

The turn has come in New England affairs" President Lawrence said in his address. "Throughout New England there is a new spirit of getting together and a faith that makes new enterprise possible and a more aggressive approach to the problem of selling New England goods."

PRAISES CO-OPERATION.

New England, he pointed out, is obliged to import cotton, wool, leather, coal, and most of its food, and in order to pay for these imports New England must produce and market goods outside of its boundaries. Expressing optimism as to conditions throughout New England, he praised the co-operation of the public, and especially the newspapers which, he said are quick to sense the public interest.

It is the duty of the council, President Lawrence said, to bring home to the people of New England that only through co-operation can they hope to maintain their leadership in education, industry and enjoyment which have been traditional for the last 200 years.

The morning session was given over to the reading of reports and resolutions and discussion of major problems. The research committee, of which A. Lincoln Filene of Boston is chairman, reported that it was proceeding under a recent resolution of the council directing it to co-operate with the U. S. Bureau of Commerce in its survey of New England as a production area.

LUNCHEON AT HOTEL.

Members of the council attended luncheon at the Hotel Vermont following the morning session and the afternoon was given over to recreation.

Massachusetts members, besides President Lawrence and Mr. Filene, are: Howard Coonley, president of the Walworth Manufacturing Company, Boston; John F. Tinsley, Worcester; Joshua L. Brooks, Springfield; B. A. Johnson, Joseph C. Kimball and Edwin S. Webster, all of Boston, John Chandler, Sterling Junction; Arthur W. Forbes, New Bedford, and Horace Moses of Springfield.

CRUSADERS MARCHING ON LONDON

Churches Opened to Advancing Pilgrims in Nation-Wide Anti-War Move

London, June 11 (A.P.).—Women peace crusaders are moving upon London from every part of the British Isles. Countesses are trudging along country roads with charwomen.

Bishops are welcoming the pilgrims in their cathedrals and wishing them Godspeed. Nonconformist chapels and established churches are being thrown open to the footsore travelers, who read their peace resolutions in every town and add the names of the places to their banners to show their itinerary.

June 19 the Crusaders will enter London and gather in Hyde Park. Women speakers from 20 platforms will demand peace, saying they are tired of the talk of politicians and diplomatists. British women of all classes have united in this anti-war demonstration.

LEADER USES PLANE.

The idea started last January at a meeting of the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom at Geneva. Picker the Leadership of Mrs. Pethick Lawrence scores of women's organizations have been enlisted in the movement which soon will sweep

She flies to various [illegible] land when trains are too [illegible] enough joins with the marchers on stats in speechmaking and [illegible] es off to some other destination her army of peace. Lord Parmoor, judicial member of the Privy Council, will be among the speakers at Hyde Park during the final demonstration. Maud Rowden, the famous woman preacher, Helen Atkinson, Member of Parliament, and Margaret Bondfield and Mrs. Wintringham, both former Members of Parliament, also will speak.

Women's organizations of all sorts are participating in the pilgrimage. Many working women cannot leave their homes, but [illegible] Pilgrims marching a few miles with them with a blue armlet of peace upon their sleeves.

Sir Harry Lauder joined the pilgrimage for a time. Sybil Thorndike, many other prominent actresses and Lady Astor also are aiding the pilgrims.

GOODWIN OPENS WAR ON HAVERH ILL COURTS

Registrar of Motor Vehicles Frank A. Goodwin today hurled a verbal broadside at the Haverhill police and courts, charged that it is almost impossible to convict drunken drivers there, threatened to invade the city with extra inspectors and "clear up" the situation himself and at the same time suspended licenses of three drivers acquitted in Haverhill [illegible] of drunken driving.

The statement is one of the boldest denunciations that has issued from the office of the registrar of motor vehicles. In one case he charged that the judge and prosecutor for the defendant left the courtroom together and that when they returned a lawyer was appointed to [illegible] for the defendant.

The drivers whose licenses were suspended are Ernest [illegible] Hathaway of Bradford, Peter I. Adams of Lawrence, and Joseph A. [illegible] of Haverhill. All three were tried in the same court before Judge Winn yesterday.

Goodwin said:

From BOSTON to BROADWAY

By GEORGE M. COHAN

GEORGE COHAN tells of the tribulations of an actor on "Summer snap." He played Rock Point Pavilion and had to do his own stage-hand work. The 4 Cohans move on to a New York opening.

CHAPTER V.

"Oh, hello, Jerry! Glad to see you."

It was the house manager speaking as he shook hands with dad when we entered the stage door of the Union Square Theatre a day or so before our opening.

"I've just received a telegram from Boston headquarters," he continued. "Here, read it yourself," and he handed the message to dad. Mother, Josie and I leaned over his shoulders, and we all read it at the same time:

"Tell Cohan family not to do the four act. Mr. and Mrs. Cohan in sketch and two children in single turns better for New York audience."

I won't say that we were disap-

Young Stribling Gives Credit to Conqueror

New York, June 11.—"I've no alibi to make. I lost to a good man. That's all."

Thus did W. L. "Young" Stribling, Georgia aspirant for the light heavyweight championship today account for the beating given him last night in the Yankee Stadium by Paul Berlenbach.

Stribling was pale and nervous, with lip cut and left eye swollen, when interviewed this morning at his hotel.

"What is the use of saying this or that thing was the cause of my losing the fight?" Stribling said. "Berlenbach was the better man last night. But I hope to do better in my next fight."

Berlenbach to Meet Delaney in July

By JACK CONWAY

New York, June 11.—Paul Berlenbach announced today that he will sign to defend his title against Jack Delaney in a bout to be staged at Ebbet's Field, Brooklyn, next month, under the direction of Humbert Fugazy.

Fugazy attempted to stage a Berlenbach-Delaney bout this month. Tex Rickard blocked him by putting the champion in with Young Stribling, whom he easily defeated in their fifteen-round bout at the Yankee Stadium before 40,000 fans.

Jack Hickey, Berlenbach's manager, also received an offer of a $10,000 guarantee for a liberal percentage to meet Jack Sharkey, New England heavyweight champion at a Boston A. A. show at Braves Field the latter part of July.

Jack Conway

Berlenbach and Sharkey were matched against Jack Delaney in Madison Square Garden on May 25 when Delaney was substituted for Stribling. Berlenbach is the logical opponent for the winner of the Sharkey-Delaney bout. Sharkey has agreed to meet the winner of the Delaney-Stribling match.

Hickey also received a challenge from Jack Renault, Canadian champion, who went to Stribling, while Lew Tendler was even.

Stribling was hanging on for dear life in the early rounds of the battle. Only his youth and courage enabled him to go the distance.

Berlenbach virtually won the fight in the fourth frame. At this point of the contest Stribling had the advantage. The Georgian had held the champion off in the first frame while his left hook and hisses were what Stribling gave him the notion in the second and third chapters.

In the fourth, the champion opened up at all hits. He dove to close quarters under Stribling's guard and ripped short, savage blows to the body. Stribling, caged under the power of his rivals attack.

Berlenbach threw caution to the wind and had a wedding ring on at the bell.

From then on it was all Berlenbach. He drove Stribling from ropes to corner of the ring to another. At times the challenger, gasping for breath, would fall into a clinch in efforts to cover up when his body and head were being pounded raw.

In the sixth frame, Berlenbach gave Stribling a terrific beating, staggering him with a left hook to the jaw and following with a right to the head. Stribling was saved from being counted out by the bell.

He looked a sorry sight as he walked to his corner. His face was bruised and battered, his body red from the punishment he received.

Stribling, who showed his true spirit, he clutched at Berlenbach with a vicious swing which missed its mark.

Berlenbach then settled down to his task and pounded Stribling's body at will. Stribling was unable to get in a blow to the champion's head.

Berlenbach's blows were delivered with terrific force. Stribling's body was red from the punishment he received.

Jersey ICE CREAM

Makes rosy-cheeked children

The standard of Ice Cream quality as set by law in Massachusetts is 2% cream richness, or "butter fat." Jersey is twice as rich as "standard" ice cream. It contains double the usual content—that is, 14 per cent of real cream richness.

Give the children plenty of Jersey Ice Cream. It's a real food. They like the true fruit-flavors. The pure rich cream is made doubly safe by being homogenized and pasteurized in one of the cleanest sun-lighted plants in New England.

New York, June 11.—"I've no alibi to make. I lost to a good man. That's all."

Thus did W. L. "Young" Stribling, Georgia aspirant for the light heavyweight championship today account for the beating given him last night in the Yankee Stadium by Paul Berlenbach.

Stribling was pale and nervous, with lip cut and left eye swollen, when interviewed this morning at his hotel.

"What is the use of saying this or that thing was the cause of my losing the fight?" Stribling said. "Berlenbach was the better man last night. But I hope to do better in my next fight."

Berlenbach to Meet Delaney in July

By JACK CONWAY

New York, June 11.—Paul Berlenbach announced today he will sign to defend his title against Jack Delaney in a bout to be staged at Hilbert's Field Brooklyn, next month, under direction of Humbert Fugazy.

Fugazy attempted to stage a Berlenbach-Delaney bout this month but Tex Rickard blocked him by putting the champion in with Young Stribling, whom he easily defeated in their fifteen round bout at the Yankee Stadium before 40,000 fans.

Dan Hickey, Berlenbach's manager, also received an offer of a $10,000 guarantee for a 15-rounder at 158 pounds to meet Jack Sharkey, New England heavyweight champion, at a ringside. A. A. Braves Field for the latter part of July. Berlenbach and Hickey were ready to sign the articles when Sharkey's signed agreement was received by mail. Sharkey's manager, however, insisted that the bout be staged in the Boston Garden, and when Berlenbach refused to accept this condition, Sharkey's manager refused to sign the articles.

Jack Conway

Berlenbach then shifted to the head and had Stribling hanging on at the end.

Each round was all Berlenbach. He drove Stribling from one corner of the ring to another. At times the challenger fanned but never only feeble efforts to carry on. He was badly beaten when he was pulled down in the fourth round.

In the fourth frame Berlenbach got in a few right leads Millet of Woodland Golf Club scored the Woodlander the best round of golf he has seen this year. He was deadly on the greens and combined with a couple pins gave him a 3 under par 68. In the afternoon, he knocked out one of the best scores ever made by a member of Bass Rocks.

Al Wade was tied for the morning against P. F. Cribbs of the Country Club, in spite of the fact that he won handily.

It was in the P. M. round that Wade's sweet luck was said and won his card was found. It was discovered that he had replaced the credit made by Charlie Chase Commonwealth on the 16th hole. He was one over par going out, but on the return trip he hit just beaten by four strokes. Coming home Wade had four birdies and five pars, setting up a record these holes which will be hard to for some time.

THE KID ✦ By TAD

The Life of a Fighter, in Ten Chapters

CHAPTER IV.

THE clubrooms were crowded to the doors the night of the big show when the Kid entered with his manager. He was to fight in the featherweight class. They took him to the dressing room and put on a pair of green tights, fighting shoes, and fixed him up to the queen's taste.

He was to fight the pride of the East Side. He entered the ring as confident as any of them. The big lights and the crowd scared him some, but he was thinking only of the red-headed boy in the other corner who was to battle with him. He was there to lick that boy, and then to trim those that followed him.

Clang! went the bell, and they patted the Kid on the back as he stepped to the centre of the ring. Everything seemed to be misty. He could barely see the other boy. He walked around this side, then the other side, and still his opponent was, or seemed to be, as much of a ghost as ever. Suddenly something hit the Kid and he went down. He heard a terrible noise—it was cheering. He saw a man standing over him counting numbers and heard "seven." He looked to his corner and they were yelling for him to get up. He felt cold water hit him on the back and then, straightening up, climbed to his knees and back to his fighting pose.

The red-headed boy came rushing at him again, but the Kid lowered his head, fought as he did in the sand lot the week before, and the first thing he knew the red-headed boy drop to the floor, holding his stomach. The fight was over.

They brought on two more the same night, and the Kid did them up as he had done the first. He was carried from the ring on the shoulders of his manager and trainer.

Little Poker Face Prays for a Deluge to Delay the Hard Courts Contest for Crown.

By H. T. HORAN

Paris, June 11.—"Well, do I look like a sick little girl?"

Thus queried Helen Wills today, when she received the International News Service correspondent in her room in the American Hospital, and gave the first interview which she has granted since she was operated upon a week ago.

"I am praying for rain four days of rain," said Miss Wills, as she looked out of the window at a steady pour.

"If it rains four more days then I will be able to go out. It was Browne and Suzanne pas.

Mary is an unusual opponent to have for the United States. It is true she will probably be nervous playing against Miss Langlen, but not half as nervous as I would be her place."

Rain today brought about the postponement of the match between Miss Mary K. Browne and Miss Suzanne Lenglen in the finals of the ladies singles the International tennis championships.

Finnegan Expects to Turn Tables on Glick

DICK HONEY BOY FINNEGAN is a determined young man. He is dead set on squaring accounts with Joe Glick of Brooklyn when they meet under the auspices of the Suffolk A. C. at Braves Field next Wednesday night—the bout has been put forward from Tuesday night—and avers that after the contest it will be him and not Glick who will be pounding Tod Morgan for a match for the world's junior lightweight handicap.

Honey Boy was an interested spectator at the bout between Glick and Sugar and Babe Herman Wednesday night. Finnegan's defeat by Glick at November was quite similar to the reverse sustained by Sugar in the latter's first battle with Herman. The Dorchester southpaw who includes Herman among his list of victims opined that if the colored boy could come back and beat Herman he can do the same thing against Glick.

Manager Dan Carroll, who entertains hopes of having Finnegan crowned featherweight and lightheavyweight champion of the world, has sent his charge to Martin Flaherty's open-air training camp at Wamesit and has surrounded him with a formidable corps of sparring partners and trainers. Carroll and Finnegan appreciate the value of a victory over Glick the ring sensation of New York, and will leave nothing undone to annex a win.

Matchmaker Tom Goodwin in the meantime, is at work arranging a program of preliminary bouts that will measure up to the high standard of the feature event.

Yale Finds Athletes Good Insurance Risks

NEW HAVEN, Ct., June 11 (I.N.S.).—Yale University's Department of Health is seeking to decide the old question as to what is the effect on participation in athletic sports on health and longevity.

So far the department has reached the conclusion that "the life expectancy of college graduates is somewhat higher or more favorable than that of the average young man accepted for life insurance."

In reaching this conclusion the department, according to the Yale Alumni Weekly today, finds "there is no evidence to indicate injuries to the health of students by athletic sports conducted under such supervision as is enforced at Yale."

The investigation is being conducted by Dr. James C. Greenway, director of Yale's Department of Health, and Ira V. Hiscock, assistant professor of public health, assisted by Robert Jordan and Jarvis Case, of the Yale Department of Public Health.

The very famous budgeter, Ernest Engel, offers the following, known as "Engel's Laws of Consumption":

1—As the income of a family increases, a smaller percentage is expended for food.

2—As the income of a family increases the percentage of expenditure for clothing remains about the same.

3—The percentage for rent, fuel and light remains the same whatever the income.

4—As the income increases in amount a constant increase in percentage is expended for education, health, recreation, amusements, etc.

Thus, to illustrate the first law, it would be found that at present out of a $1,500 income perhaps 50 per cent would be spent for food for this family of normal size, while of a $2,500 income, the amount spent might remain about the same, but the proportion of the income spent would fall to possibly 28 per cent.

According to the second and third laws the family will use a larger sum for clothing, housing and all that goes to the upkeep of the house in order to meet the higher standard of living which an increased income will allow, but the same relation of these outgoes to the entire income is apt to be kept.

As concerns the fourth law, the more one spends for other than physical necessities, or the items that are classed in the modern budget under the word advancement or personal, will be very small in amount and in person are in the lower ranks of income, but as the family becomes better off the percentage left over for education, recreation, culture (actual figures and luxury of all kinds will increase; it may even reach one-half of the income.

I really think our own six divisions of the budget are the best practical working basis. Don't you? My mail is full of the most fascinating reports of successful budgeters.

I wish all of you could join the ranks, won't you decide today to listen to is knock of the opportunity to get your family finances on a firm foundation?

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

A lady from Everett asks for a budget for seven in the family with a $35-a-week income. Has five children, from three to twelve years, is having a hard struggle. Pays $43 a month rent, $10 payment on piano, $1 a week laundry, milk $1.50 a week, $1 a week on a sick bill, gas is often very high, almost $10 a month; electricity $2.50 a month. Carfares for husband are $2 a week. Sunday school and church dues 50 cents a week; amusements 30 cents, insurance $3.20 a week and $12 quarterly.

I am afraid you cannot hope to save anything except your insurance money at present. A $25 budget usually allows 14 weekly for savings and at present you are paying on an average of $12.5 a week for insurance On $35 budget you should not pay over $7.50 a week for that and this should include your husband's carfares. At present you are paying over $7.50 for rent and $2 additional for his carfare.

Just now I do not see how you can allow more than $2.50 a week for clothing and $12.50 for food. This leaves you $3.80 for operating (just what you are at present paying for gas electricity and laundry). This leaves you $4.62 for personal, out of which must come the payment for the piano, the $1 a week on the back bill and all other expenses. It may be necessary to take $1 away from this $4.62 personal fund and add it to your food allotment, as you will have to make a real study of the food question to keep within your budget.

Mrs. F. B. N. asks for a budget for $42. Pays $20 house rent, $8 garage rent, milk bill, $1.16, weekly insurance, $1.40 Has been sending laundry to the wet wash, but is willing to sacrifice that for pleasure of automobile. Pays $5 weekly on the car. Family of five, including three children from six years to seven months. Husband has no carfares.

Is paying $3 a week into a Christmas Club, but would like to save more. Believes with help of budget she will be able to do so. Is now paying $12 a week for food. Would like to keep within $10. Pays $3 a month for gas and about $1 for electricity.

A standard $42 a week budget allows $6 for savings, $9.80 for shelter, $11 for food, $5.50 for clothing, $5 for operating and $5 for personal. You are at present saving $3 a week in the Christmas Club and weekly insurance $1.40, totalling $4.40. This leaves you a balance of 60 cents under savings. Your rent is not overhigh. It averages $5.50 a week, whereas budget allows you $7.50 so this gives you 80 cents more I note that with careful study you can get your food budget down to this figure and am sending you the recipe books requested. I am taking away $2 a week for clothing, leaving you only $3.50.

Budget would ordinarily allow you $8 for operating. Your gas and electricity amount to 70 cents a week and you will need at least $2 a week for coal. This all, give you a sum total of $2.20 here. This means that all bills you have borrowed from your other allotments enough to make up $4.70 for personal. At present your garage rent the payment on the car and $1 a week for tobacco amount to $7.77.

I am afraid that the lower rent you expect in the Fall is the only solution of your problem. At present outgo is just a little bit ahead of income.

Budget says that the secret of keeping food bills down is to watch the papers for food sales, plan your menus a week ahead and make a weekly trip to the market.

QUEEN'S COUNSEL.

by Queen of Romance

THAT "character is destiny" is one of my favorite mottoes because it is astonishingly true.

Once I knew three sisters. They were always together, with but one year of age between each. I watched their games and listened to their talks. All three had beloved dolls and used to incorporate their own subconscious selves into their dolls, each giving the doll a character and code of behavior according to each little mother's thoughts and ambitions.

The eldest married a poor man and all through life looked on emotionally as the other two, asking, pleading, living upon the crumbs of those who gave freely, but without reproach or respect or love.

As a man thinketh, so is he. As you think, so goes your character. And character works out into reality as definitely as an acorn, planted, becomes an oak.

Those who mean to be happy, believe in happiness for themselves, seem to attract it to them and find it. Even their misfortunes and griefs finally turn in their favor.

Those who see all things as tragedy manage to attract tragedy, live tragedy. And those who are "losers" and cannot think and act for themselves, continue throughout life to avoid not only responsibility, but the bright and happy experiences that are a part of it.

I feel like exhorting every mother over her children's sake to put these words upon her wall: Character is destiny! And to remember that destiny does not "just come." It is brought by character.

and formed their lives much along the same lines they had acted out with their dolls as children. The first became rich, honored, adored, dominating others by her personal charm. Looking Fate in the face, she seemed to keep it at bay, advancing victoriously through life.

The second sister had a tragic, pseudonate life. Fate buffeted her, but could not quell her spirit. Even in her cruellest hours, she stood strong and magnificent, a masterful woman, to whom all looked up.

"Why, we've been rehearsing the new act eight and ten hours a week!"

"Sure we have. It'll be a sensation, too," I added this.

"Keep quiet, son," my mother snapped.

"Tess, let papa settle it, George," and dodie, as she said this, gave me the high stare to "play dead."

I had gave me another warning look and then continued to the manager:

"I wish you'd reconsider this catch, Jim."

"It isn't up to me, old pal," he answered. "Tom more Albee and I know he runs his business to suit himself. I wouldn't give it another thought if I were you. Just go ahead and do the sketch and two songs, and maybe later in the season you'll get a week here for the whole act."

"What do you think, Nellie?" Dad put it up to mother.

She advertised her disappointment with a shrug of her shoulders. "I think this is a crime," I urged.

"I'll commit one in a minute if you don't keep quiet," said dad.

And, certainly against my better judgment, I kept quiet, but I did not do as we were told.

Well, I dare say the only thing for me to do as we were told." There was a sad note in dad's voice as he reluctantly murmured this. He had evidently counted on a great success. Since we'd last played it, and had great hopes of its being our first big hit. We had gone through a final rehearsal of the thing that morning before we left the boarding house and were all enthusiastic over the changes and the big chance it had. I saw my single finger in that any too strong, so the thing was a double disappointment to me.

"Well, never mind, Jerry. Everything happens for the best," the manager remarked as dad handed back the telegram.

"I suppose so," he replied, without any great resistance except a pucker his lips.

George Rebels

"You mean to tell me you're going to stand for this?" I shouted.

For an answer dad gave me another hard look and I kicked a rosin board clean across the stage and walked to the back door and out the alley.

"They can't do this to me, I won't stand for it," I started telling the world as soon as I left the open air. Later I changed my mind and returned.

As I walked in the stage door, I discovered dad at the footlights, he hearing the music of my single turn, "The Lively Bootblack." Mother and Josie were standing on one side, drying their eyes and trying to smile as they saw me coming.

"You ought to rehearse your own music, George. Dad doesn't know your tempo very well," Josie suggested in a stage whisper.

"Yes, I think you should, son," mother added.

I didn't want to appear to be weakening too quickly, so I carried along the bluff.

"I haven't made up my mind yet whether I'll play the act or not."

Dad heard this, looked up, and called to me: "Come on, son, get at rehearse it yourself. Hurry, now We'd last played it, and had great hopes of its being our first big hit. doing," he said, "and don't you forget it."

But as to what he is doing he is discreetly silent. There is a book under way, but he parries any attempt to discuss it. Also, he seems to delight in inventing Mr. Bethel with a considerable amount of mystery.

Edith, who has a very feminine curiosity, has questioned Annie Cochran but without much result. Some days the invalid keeps his bed. Annie Cochran believes that those days follow nights when "George" has been particularly active.

And as proof of this, she produces the fact that twice now, having left her tea-kettle empty on top of the stove, she has found it full in the morning. As Mr. Bethel cannot get downstairs unassisted, and as the secretary has always stoutly maintained that he has not left his room all night, Annie Cochran falls back on "George"; and no one must admit, not without reason.

Poor Carroway was laid away yesterday, after the largest funeral in the history of these parts. And so ends one chapter in our drama. Ends, that is, for him. What is to come after no one can say.

One thing has tended somewhat to relieve the local strain. No sheep have been killed for eighteen days.

Caught in the Pipe

Maggie Morrison makes a daily report to Clara.

Maggie brings us much of our local news. Today, for instance, she informs us that the detective has gone away, "bag and baggage," from the hotel, and probably this accounts for the lighter tone of this entry. I am reprieved, at least until some other sheep are killed.

Later: Halliday and I, late this afternoon, made an examination of the culvert, or pipe, in which our unknown hid after the accident. We chose a late hour, as there are few who will trust themselves out after twilight.

Mr. Logan, the rector of the Oakville Episcopal Church, Saint Jude's had an experience in point the other night: Calling late on a dying parishioner, he ran out of gasoline on the main road, some six miles from home. He endeavored to stop various cars as they flew past, but in the general terror no one would pick him up, and after being fired at by one excited motorist he gave it up and walked back to the rectory.

We must have presented a curious study for any observer moving with guilty haste, and I, in particular emerging from the pipe covered with mud and a heterogeneous collection of leaves and grasses. Not only was Halliday too broad in the shoulders for easy access, but his injury forbade the necessary gymnastics.

But I found nothing, save that undoubtedly someone had preceded me into it. A man skilled in such matters might have read a story into the various marks and depressions, but they were not for me.

I retreated, inch by inch, and was again free as to my legs but a prisoner as to the remainder of my body, when Halliday called that a car was coming. I had three choices; one was to remain in my present shameful state; another was to emerge and face the public eye, looking as though I had been tarred and feathered; and the third was to retire into my burrow.

I retired. With that peculiar venom with which fate has been pursuing me, the car stopped over me, and Starr spoke.

"Looking over the scene of your trouble?" he said.

"Looking for the clews you fellows can't find," Halliday retorted easily.

I could hear Starr snort, and then chuckle drily as he let in his clutch again. "I'll give you a dollar for every clew you find," he called, and the car moved on.

When Halliday gave me the signal I emerged feebly into the open air, and stood upright. That was a narrow squeak," I said.

But he was looking after the disappearing car. "Yes," he said. "But I think it was a mistake. I should have told him you were there."

The net result of the search was not encouraging. True, Halliday picked up, outside the pipe, half of the lens of an eyeglass, but there is no proof that it belonged to his assailant.

Tonight, sitting down to make this entry, I have missed my fountain pen, and as it has my initials on it we must recover it tomorrow if possible. It would be extremely unpleasant under the circumstances for Starr, for instance, in a burst of zeal to find it in the pipe.

True, Peter Goss could swear that, at the moment Halliday was attacked, he and I were looking for a ghost in the fore-rigging of the sloop. But I am at this disadvantage, that they give me no opportunity to defend myself, for they make no accusation. Their method is that damnable one of watchful waiting; Greenough's psychological idea that, given enough rope, a criminal will hang himself.

July 18

Edith and Halliday went this morning to recover my fountain pen. Edith in spite of our protests determined to crawl into the pipe for it. To this end she put on my mechanics overall in which I oil and grease my car, and very sweet indeed she looked in it.

But the pen was not there. She found the cap of it, imbedded in the mud, but not the pen itself. It looks as though Starr has lost no time!

Edith, I believe, suspects something. There is a growing gravity and maturity in her; she tries to show me, by small caresses and attentions, that she believes in me and loves me. But she knows that there is something wrong.

And she has, I think, quarreled with Halliday. There was nothing on the surface to show it, on their return today, but he declined her invitation to luncheon and went off, whistling rather ostentatiously, to his bacon and beans at the boathouse. This afternoon, while Mr. Bethel slept, she accepted young Gordon's invitation to go canoeing, and had the audacity to take the canoe, so to speak, from under poor Halliday's nose. According to Jane, she needs a good shaking.

There is, I understand, no definite engagement between them.

I must not forget to enter that Halliday last night believes he saw the red lamp burning in the den behind the library of the maid house. He told me the details this morning as he waited for Edith to don my overalls.

It was his first night, after his accident, at the boathouse, and he could not sleep.

"I had a good bit of pain," he said, "and at one o'clock I go up and went outside. There was a—rt of dull red light coming from the windows of the library of the other house, and I watched it for a while. It was extremely faint, and at first I thought it might be a fire; then, as it didn't grow any, I saw it must be a light of some sort."

He knew the stories of the red lamp, but he also knew I had locked it away, so after a time he started up toward the house. He was about half way up the lawn when it went out, suddenly, and left him staring.

Sees the Red Lamp

But he was curious, and he went on. He made a complete circuit of the building, but there was no movement or sound from within, and so he turned and went back again. He believes the light was in the den, not the library.

Here, then, is corroboration of my own impression of some few nights ago, but with a difference. For I saw the light itself, a momentary flash as though a breeze had for an instant pushed open the heavy curtains at the den windows, and then had let them fall again.

I am convinced that young Gordon has never seen the light, or he would have spoken of it. He is fluent enough about what he calls the "spooky" quality of the house. It is unlikely that Mr. Bethel, imprisoned in his upper room, can have any knowledge of it. Yet here we have two dispassionate observers, seeing at different times and under different circumstances, a light apparently of spontaneous origin and no known cause.

To Be Continued.

A Cross Section of Fifi's Little Head

DRAWN BY NELL BRINKLEY

© 1925 by NEA Feature Service, Inc.

THERE is a modern fairy-story that one day the fond and funny (Fifi called them "funny") parents of Fifi had taken, in their pride and suspicion (the pride was Dad's and suspicion was Mom's), a picture of a cross-section of Fifi's little head. Lately she had been studying so hard. She had been given to staring into space. She had been buried in books and dreams. She climbed no more trees and paid a great deal of attention to her bobbed head.

Dad said that at last Fifi was deciding what she was going to be in the world. She was athirst for knowledge.

And when the pics came home, here was Fifi's neat little nose, and pouting mouth, and bird-breast chin, and Oliver-twist head all in profile, and INSIDE it was a map of boys' and movie-heroes' faces, hearts, Cupid's benevolently grinning little countenance, new hats and silk stockings—just LOVE and CLOTHES, and rapidly changing masculine beauty!

Well—Dad took Fifi West to a lonesome ranch for the Summer!

The Making of a Husband

By Ann Lisle

IN the meantime, I think Dr. Willis has drawn up the will which makes Arlette his chief beneficiary, and that Zeke and Nick Perry, who would have profited by the previous will, have been called on to witness the new one which enriches Arlette at their cost—and makes me her guardian.

It seems strange that this little French Canadian waif has come to occupy so important a place in my life. Perhaps if I were not so cut off by time and circumstances from all the old friends who have meant so much to Jim and me I should not stress Arlette's place in our scene of activities. But as it is, life seems fairly to centre about the little dryad with her elusive personality, her shy beauty, her lovely voice—and her tremendous charm for men.

Today, however, something new came along and gave me more food for thought. I was driving Nick Perry along the main road when he asked suddenly:

"Why were you so set against this arrangement? Why did you have to think of Jim and me owning a car together?"

"You don't own it together," I said brusquely. "Dr. Willis practically gave it to you. And Jim and I take turns acting as chauffeurs."

"You like driving, don't you?" asked Mr. Perry.

"Of course."

"Does having me as a passenger take all the joy out of life?" he laughed.

"Almost," I said with grim ungraciousness.

A silence fell between us. Then Nicholas Perry asked curtly:

"If you feel that way about it, why didn't you prevent Jim from joining me in this project?"

"I couldn't," I said without the slightest desire to evade the truth. "Couldn't prevent Jim from going in with me? Have you so little influence over your own husband?"

"I'm not given to interference," I said grimly. "And in this case I couldn't logically object to Jim's wish. You need us to be neighborly and drive your car. Jim loves driving. We can't afford a car of our own. So this arrangement is far too convenient and sensible to have me object to in terms of an—absurd prejudice."

Nick Perry laughed. Then he leaned forward and peered down a side road with great animation. His face screwed into an odd mask. He pointed a little sign swinging on a gate-post.

"I'd like tea," he said. "This place is wonderful."

It was not until we drove up the driveway of the place he had chosen for tea that I saw Jeanie's blue coupe parked at the entrance adjoining the road Nick Perry had suddenly noted.

"He's brought me here because Jeanie is here! He wants to see her again. Why?"

I was soon to discover that Nick Perry's reason for wanting tea was a far more subtle one than the desire to see Jeanie.

Having to act as Nicholas Perry's chauffeur several afternoons a week has not appealed to me from the beginning of the arrangement, whereby he owns a car and we house it and pay half its upkeep and drive it—and its owner—about. But with the realization that I was about to chaperone a reunion between Nicholas Perry and Jeanie, the whole affair took a turn that made me lose my mental bearings.

To be Continued Tomorrow.

MEDBURY SAYS---

SEAMEN'S statistics show that 500 over seven hundred beautiful girls were saved from drowning last week. The life guards have certainly had their arms fu..

HALF the women nowadays go to the beach to swim. The other half go there to sink.

THEY holler for help every time they see a life guard who isn't busy.

WHILE one beautiful girl is being saved, two homely ones are drowning.

ONE very unattractive woman called for assistance and the life guard said her she'd have to take her turn.

HE said if she wanted to drown she'd have to get in line

HE o ns that homely women have no business in the water if they can't swim.

A lot of pretty girls don't start sinking unless they like the looks of the life guards.

ONE ritzy dame who was dr ing said she was going to going under for the right came wat to g ne.

IT'S a pity that the a sometimes head for the man wanted was out to lunch.

SHE finally had to postpone her sinking until he came on duty again.

A PRETTY girl very seldom starts drowning until she fixes her hair and powders her nose.

SHE doesn't like to be rescued un til she's presentable.

A SOCIETY woman started to drown at eight o'clock the other night and was shocked to death when she discovered that the life guard who saved her didn't have evening clothes on.

MOST children are premeditated. Beautiful women very seldom drown without a rehearsal.

DAILY SHORT STORY

'HUSBANDS WHO LISTEN'

By Merlyn Swift

"THOSE Parrishes are the happiest pair I've ever come across," said Mrs. Joynes with that complete finality that made her a terror for gossip. The allegation that their saintly minister, Mr. Higgs, was unfaithful to his wife, uttered in that convincing tone of hers, would have carried conviction into a circle of elders. Her husband did not take exception to her remark about the Parrishes, though he was sceptical.

The Parrishes lived next door to the Joyneses. They had just come to live there two weeks ago. But two weeks was sufficiently long for Mary Ellen Joynes to know all about Mrs. Parrish at least, from lingeries to breakfast menus. Yet, even such omniscient people as Mrs. Joynes may be fooled.

"Yes. They are a congenial couple," continues Mary Ellen, talking directly to the bottom of the tea-cup that the silent-suffering William, her afflicted husband, tilted at her. William was not supposed to speak. In the Joynes wedding Mary Ellen had promised to love, honor, and did not omit obey; William promised to listen. That was his function, to listen to Mary Ellen.

"He works awful late and must leave very early," harangued Mrs. Joynes. "But when he comes in the evenings . . . oh, William, it so reminds me of the first few months we were married."

William looked dismally at the tea leaves in the bottom of his cup. They had never told him anything worth while. A fortune-liar had read in the mthat he would be very happy if he would only harken to the voice of love. He harkened, but he was not happy.

Mary Ellen frowned when William failed to emit any waves from his Leviathan bosom. William was very prosaic at tea-time. Now Mr. Parrish with his wife,

"How do you know so much about them?" demanded her listening bl with desperate rashness. "They seem to be unobtrusive people. I've never seen the man; the woman is a pretty little piece. . . ."

Mary Ellen glowered at him She had nearly two bags of sugar in we ght behind that glower William tried to look more harmless than possi and did succeed to give the impression of a very terrified rabbit.

"You seem to have obtruded yourself a little," sneered Mary Ellen.

"You pay a lot more attention to other women than to me. You can't fool me, Bill Joynes. I know you never loved me. You're a little, cowardly brute . . . a bully. You're not fit for. . . ."

Willis crawled deeper into his shell of silence while his well-educated wife aired her forensic English.

"You were out with that painted Choctaw who types for you this afternoon. Weren't you? I saw powder not sufficiently brushed off your lapel. You're a rake, a deceiver. Aren't you?"

Silence spoke yes.

"You don't care a thing about me. When I try to tell you how content ed that man and his wife next door are, you pass unclean remarks about the woman. You interrupt me constantly and seek to provoke me. You're a low scoundrel.

Silence did not deny.

"Why can't you profit by the example of the Parrishes, William Joynes!" screamed Mary Ellen in beseeching fury. "Why can't you help me to establish domestic peace and love as those two enjoy? To night you will walk all by your club and leave me alone any old way; while in the next house Mr. Parrish will come at eight and stay with her till early morning. Every night in the two weeks they've been here she has behaved like that. There's a faithful husband for you—and a faithful wife. Even though he is away from her at work all day, he does not taken a lot of time for himself. You are at liberty to come here when you will But not You would rather sit and hold hands with a bare-kneed hussy. Aren't you ashamed!"

William was or he ought to have been. It was hard to say whether he was ashamed or merely frightened lest Heaven should strike him for his sins. William, harmless though he looked, was a devil among the typists, and Lizzie Smith, his own tenographer, was of very fine type, clear and smooth. Mary Ellen's tirade did not convert him; but he decided to stay in that night rather than fill an engagement to push vari-colored pills with a stick over green baize into little pockets in company with other unhappy husbands. Yes, he would stay at home and talk to Mary Ellen. So he took a good book and began to read while his helpmate quipped the china.

A spell of silence had succeeded Mrs. Joynes' oration—merely an inevitable reaction. She was out of breath and had said enough to be ready to begin all over. There was enmity between her and her man. She did really wish to have William an affectionate husband, but he kissed her like a bombshell.

Shadows lengthened, storekeepers lighted their shops so that people could not steal things, some dragged cabbages and grape barrels inside, cats stretched themselves preparatory to going out, people stretched preparatory to tur ning in, children played with more energy and less signs of tiring—all of which means that it was night time or near it.

When it was truly night time, Mary Ellen, the dishes done, came over to William and bent down to him. He thought she was going to bite his face but she merely wanted a kiss. This sad ceremony over she led him to the window and pointed with mute eloquence to a window across the alley.

William saw Cupid and Psyche giving an exhibition of superfine osculation with trimmings. It was a melting sight. So melting was it that William turned to Mary Ellen, saw beauty there and desired it.

The next morning Mrs. Joynes said to Mrs. Parrish, friendly-like:

"You and your husband are wonderfully happy and faithful. Aren't you, dear? I could not help seeing you in the evenings."

Mrs. Parrish said yes—only yes.

That night Mr. Parrish came home.

"This is a pretty spot, Marion," said Mr. Parrish. "I'm sorry I had to stay away in Toledo so long and leave you alone in a new flat. It is a fine flat. Have you been lonesome during the two weeks? Do you like it?"

"Awfully lonesome, George," said Marion. "And I don't like it now. The people next door are very in We're not going to stay. You say your work takes you to Buffalo tomorrow morning. Well I'll go with you and leave orders to have the furniture stored away till we settle down in one place. On careful thought I have decided to travel about with you. It is too costly week after week without you."

He kissed her tenderly. George was also the listening kind.

FOXY GRANDPA'S INTERESTING DAILY BEDTIME STORY

By Foxy Grandpa

BOBBY, Bunny and I sat at the table after dinner, over a bowl of nuts, and you know how long you can do that. They are what my grandmother used to call "morish," and Bobby found them so "morish" that I was afraid if he didn't stop he's have a tummy ache. Bunny said it was a great help to have them opened for him, and not have to nibble them with his own teeth, and he thought it would be a good thing to have a nut-cracker in every resident's home.

Finally, Bobby ate so many nuts that I told him he'd better stop, and he said:

"Oh, Foxy Grandpa, just one more of these Brazil nuts."

"All right," I laughed, and said: "You'd better let me open that one. They're hard to open. What hard shells they have!"

"I'd certainly like to see these nuts growing on trees," said Bobby as he took a bite of the white meat of the Brazil nut. Do you know what I'd like to do?"

"What would you like to do?" I asked.

"I'd just like to go down there to Brazil and sit under a Brazil nut tree and eat all the Brazil nuts I wanted to."

"Don't think that would be very wise," ventured Bunny, wrinkling his furry white forehead and giving his whiskers a twist.

"Why?" asked Bobby.

"Better wait until you get down to Brazil and find out for yourself," was all that Bunny had to say.

Later on we did go to Brazil, and one day when we were out in the woods, Bobby said:

"I wonder if there are any Brazil nut trees around here."

"Sure to be," Bunny declared.

We wandered through the woods and when it was time for us to have our lunch, Bobby said:

"Here's a fine tree to have our lunch under. It will shade our heads perfectly from the sun."

"Yes, and do something else to your heads besides shade it," said Bunny. "I wouldn't sit under that tree for a whole field of radishes."

"And why not?" argued Bobby.

"Just let's sit over here a little distance from that tree," suggested Bunny, "and you'll see for yourself."

So we followed Bunny's advice, and selected another tree a little distance from the big one under which we sat down and started to eat our lunch.

Bobby was just about to start on his second sandwich, when bang!—went something which sounded like a cannon-ball dropping on the ground; it fell with a terrific thud.

Bunny jumped up and said:

"Just wait a minute. I'll show it to you." And off he scampered. In a few minutes he came back, staggering under the weight of a big ball which looked like a cocoanut.

"What is that?" Bobby and I asked.

"Crack it open, Foxy Grandpa, and you'll see," replied Bunny.

I cracked the hard shell on a rock, and what do you think was packed tightly inside of it? Twenty Brazil nuts!

"Well, of all things!" said I, taking out a nut and reaching for a stone with which to crack it open.

"I never knew they grew like that."

"They say the tree is beautiful when it is in blossom," said Bunny, "and these nuts grow from the blossoms. In fact, they are the seeds of the tree."

As I cracked the nut open and handed it to Bobby, he said:

"Nothing like having nuts after dinner wherever you are, is there, Foxy Grandpa?"

THE WEDDING PLEDGE
How a Bride's Resolve Sobered the Thoughtless Guests

Interesting snapshot of a Mr. Twitchell, one of the wedding guests. Note the psychological effect of the bride's remarks.

NOTE—"The Wedding Pledge" is a dramatic temperance recitation, which should be recited with a glass held extended in the right hand. Previous installments have told how the jovial crowd was suddenly silenced by a cry, "How terrible!" from the bride.

"WAIT!" cried Phoebe, as pearls of perspiration studded her white brow. Her dark eyes burned like wildfire.

"Wait," she repeated, as the guests stood, suddenly frozen, with glasses poised half way to their lips.

The bride gracefully kicked the train of her satin gown and then pointed a jeweled finger in the face of handsome Mr. Twitchell, one of the guests.

"There," she continued, in a low trembling voice, "is a face that begs description; genius in rule. See Mr. Twitchell twitch!"

"See!" she exclaimed, while the bridal party shrank back, the tasted nectar trembling in their tered grasp.

All eyes turned toward Alonzo Twitchell, whose damp curls fell ringlets over his noble brow. Another—

FINDS AGRICULTURE SUSTAINING INFLUENCE

While activity in the domestic business field was somewhat less in April than in preceding months, the Brookmire Economic Service, Inc., in its current analysis of sales, credit and advertising conditions, issued today, states that agriculture will continue a sustaining influence in general business.

April was the fourth consecutive month of diminishing activity, the analysis states, and while the decline has resulted in a waiting attitude in the business world, it has not been as rapid as the rate of decline in 1924 and 1925 over the corresponding period. A policy of hand to mouth buying is expected by the Bulletin to result in some sales resistance for at least four months more.

BOSTON HOLDS LEAD AS PORT FOR WOOL

By FRANK H. MELOON,
Financial Editor.

We published a few weeks ago some very interesting figures furnished us by Collector of the Port, W. W. Lufkin, showing how Boston has been steadily increasing its importance as a port. In connection with the figures just issued by Collector Lufkin he points out Boston still retains its leadership as the largest wool port in the world.

Duties collected at port of Boston during fiscal year ending June 30, 1925, will approximate $55,000,000, according to Collector Lufkin of the port. This compares with but $12,000,000 in the last normal year before the war, although not as high as the peak of 1924 when $69,000,000 was collected. Duty on wool is now levied on ascertained value of the wool when scoured instead of ad valorem or weight raw, he said.

It is time for us to be thinking of protecting one of our greatest industries—the Summer business—against the menace of oil on the beaches. Weymouth, Quincy and nearby localities have been in considerable trouble from this source during the past few years. One editorial writer calls for "a conference" to take up the matter of dumping oil into the harbor and connecting waters. I say all that is really needed is a little law enforcement by the public authorities.

FINANCE

By B. C. FORBES

President F. Edson White of Armour & Company issued a very gratifying statement to stockholders and the public last month, when the 3 per cent. annual dividend on the "A" common stock was stopped. In his closing paragraph, he says, "Probably the greatest need of big business is its habit of concealing its losses when they occur—and they do occur in all industry with which I am familiar. Concealment of them leads to the belief that big business controls financial or other controlled by the law of supply and demand."

The New York Stock Exchange has just issued a request for quarterly statements from companies whose shares are traded in on the Exchange.

President E. H. H. Simmons is alive to the importance of keeping investors with frequent and full information concerning companies that have obtained capital from the public.

I would suggest that President Simmons' request be made of any companies that refuse to comply with the Stock Exchange's request for these quarterly reports. Also, the names of companies continuing to withhold should be made known. Investors are entitled to this information.

Success in the investing of one's savings, like success in every line of business, depends largely upon having adequate knowledge and information upon which to base judgments and decisions. Ignorance usually is costly alike in business, in thrifting, in speculating.

The importance of furnishing investors with full information is far greater today than it was in former years, because the number of ordinary folks who now buy stocks has increased enormously. Authorities estimate that there are now thirteen million to fifteen million stockholders and perhaps five million bondholders. And this educational property means that many thousands are constantly joining the ranks of investors.

Let other corporation presidents follow the example of Edson White, let the New York Stock Exchange insist upon quarterly reports, let every decent investment and brokerage concern educate the public against the evils of selling million dollars a year which, it is estimated, are now lost by the public through swallowing bait of stock promoters will be saved—and heart-breaks in many homes will also be saved.

Military Training

It Is Merely Taking Due Heed of History

It appears from an explanatory statement by the Rev. Sidney L. Gulick that what the administrative committee of the Federal Council of Churches objects to in the military training of civilian pupils is the combat drill.

The combat drill is a method of teaching pupils how to fight. Inasmuch as fighting is a frequent necessity of war, learning how to do it would seem to be a proper part of military training.

To know how to fight does not mean that you are going to fight, or that you will go around electioneering for a fight.

Those who know most about the discomforts and hazards of fighting are the last to invite them.

But if fighting should have to be done, the citizen who has been trained to do it will always be at an advantage, as compared with the civilian who has to learn as he fights.

He will be at an advantage so far as his own safety is concerned, and he will be at a very decided advantage so far as his ability to defend non-combatants is concerned.

If we accept the view, which history confirms, that fighting is a possibility not yet taken out of the equation of probable human experience; and if we further believe that it is right to ask all citizens to share the hazards of national defense when national defense becomes necessary, then this supersensitiveness of the Gulick group has little to recommend it.

In works of fiction it sometimes appears that defenseless humility by its very weakness confounds and disarms the strong.

But this is not the way of the world of reality as it exists in our time.

Whether the arena of strife be a battlefield, a forum or a mart, the fate of the weakling, except in so far as mitigated by pity or contempt, is such as to justify continuing to cultivate efficient strength.

Military training in civilian schools and camps is a sensible reaction to the lessons of costly experience.

It is an attempt, and by no means a large or daring attempt, to abridge in the next war some of the frightful wastes that in previous wars have resulted from the stupid American habit of unpreparedness.

It is a very modest effort to save in camp disease or front-line foolhardiness the useless tolls of death or suffering which result when untrained men are abruptly hurled from civil pursuits into the hell of war.

We should all profoundly wish and earnestly strive that such a necessity may not again arise.

But those who are blessed with a capacity to interpret what history teaches would be recreant, indeed, to their country, their neighbors and themselves, if they relaxed in making such preparation as conditions permit to meet the war hazards of the future more adequately than our nation has met the war needs of the past.

Mysteries of the State House

The $3,000 Portraits of the Governors

Revisiting the State House, where once upon a time he helped to make the laws, and where one of these fine days it may be his duty to sign and execute them, Editor Frank Baird of the Malden Evening News spent an hour before the portraits of the Governors, which, he says, cost the Commonwealth about $3,000 apiece.

It was encouraging, the Malden editor reports, to find that the likenesses are tagged. Otherwise, he never should have recognized them.

"We hope and trust," Mr. Baird writes, "that when the State gets ready to hang its portrait of the present able Governor it will do him the honor to have one that looks something like him. The average person feels that when a man has given several years as Governor, and the State is going to expend $3,000 to hand his likeness down to posterity, it ought at least to have SOME resemblance to the gentleman whom it is supposed to portray."

Malden's very natural concern is, of course, for the present Executive, but CAN any artist do the Fuller features justice, reveal at one and the same time the man who could greet a bevy of high school girls, lay a corner-stone or hold the reins tight on an unruly Legislature, and do all these things equally well?

Moreover, no Governor is eligible to a $3,000 effigy before he becomes an "ex," and—well, isn't there plenty of time left in which to be looking around for the artist?

The Right Time to Turn In

8 O'Clock, Providence Doctors Say, for School Children Not Over 12 Years of Age

What time is bedtime in your house for the ten and eleven-year-olds of the family? In a majority of homes it probably is one hour tonight and another hour tomorrow night, depending upon the ability of the young person to wheedle, coax or overcome an easy or overindulgent parent.

A survey of all the fifth grades in the public schools of Providence, conducted by the city health department, reveals that the customary bed hour for nineteen small boys is midnight. One hundred and twenty boys reported 10:30 as their usual hour for retiring; fifty-nine turn in one hour later.

Bedtime for a ten-year-old, according to a pamphlet given to each child as the survey began, should be 8 o'clock. He should have eleven hours of sleep.

Early to bed and early to rise may not make a man wealthy and wise, but it most certainly will have an effect upon Johnny's health and his report-card. Half the grouchy husbands who growl at the breakfast-table, and slam the door when they leave for the office, probably were ten-year-olds who were permitted to stay up until all hours.

WHEN Secretary Mellon told the country that reducing the surtaxes would increase the revenues, some citizens scoffed.

They said he was merely scheming to serve the rich and please the bankers.

Well, the surplus is rolling up and in. That pleases all taxpayers, for it means either more tax outs or a quicker repayment of Uncle Sam's debts.

But for the moment it isn't so pleasant for bankers who had figured on doing some profitable short-term lending.

NAGGING PREVENTS GOING STALE

By DR. FRANK CRANE

JUDGE JOHN W. SUMMERFIELD is authority for the statement that nagging sometimes does a husband good.

It is probably upon the principle that we all need petty annoyances in order to develop patience and poise.

The philosopher sees some use in our friend the devil. There could be no courage without danger, there is no virtue without temptation, there is no commendable temperance that does not resist a desire for excess.

Evil is a shadow, and where there is no shadow there can hardly possibly be any light.

In the same way fleas and insects of all sorts are needed in order to keep us alert.

Reasoning in this line it may be a good thing for a man to be nagged a bit to prevent him from going stale.

It would not do for him to have things too easy. Character does not develop in a uniformly favorable environment.

Of course no man would choose nagging nor beg for it, but his philosophic height is largely determined by how he responds to it when it comes his way.

He can either be irritated and annoyed by it, or he can deliberately hold his course and ignore it. It can make him a lesser man or a greater man, according as he uses it.

Anyhow he cannot help himself, and he ought to study how to turn this disagreeable element of his surroundings to his advantage.

In a play some time ago called "Lonesome-Like" a man who had been used all his life to being nagged was suddenly called upon to undergo the death of the nagger. He enjoyed his liberty for a while, but finally got so lonesome that he took up with his grandmother simply because she scolded him. He found out that he was very lonesome without this continual female supervision. A man can get used to anything, and probably he can turn nagging to his advantage and comfort.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

THERE'S a massing and muttering in England and a clotting of men on the streets. Black clots, like blood from a neglected, festering wound. Above the muttering rise the strained voices of England's leaders, pleading, exhorting, threatening, shouting.

Some of those voices reveal deep wisdom and courage—some of them reveal a tragic ignorance and prejudice. Consider this speech of Sir Robert Horne against the "tyranny of the unions."

"THEY ARE GOING TO ALLOW US TO GET OUR FOOD," he shouted, "NOT BECAUSE WE ARE FREE CITIZENS OF A DEMOCRATIC STATE, BUT ONLY BY THEIR GRACE AND MERCY."

Sir Robert Horne may be a good and earnest man, but it is very great foolishness for any man to say a thing like that at any time. For none of us ever get our food or service because we are "free citizens of a democratic state." The only way in which we ever do get food and service is by the "grace and mercy" of our fellow man. And the day we forget that fact we're in for a bad time.

We may dream vast dreams of orderly governments; we may make beautiful constitutions for those governments and design splendid flags and elect wise officers and install highly efficient institutions, but in the end it is only a cleverly elaborated dream.

FOR THERE IS ONLY ONE GOVERNMENT—AND THAT IS THE PEOPLE. ALL the people. Not only the capitalists and the statesman, but also the bricklayers and the miners. And the bricklayer is as good as a capitalist, and a statesman as good as a miner. Moreover, the bricklayer needs the capitalist as much as the capitalist needs the bricklayer. AND THEY ALL ARE DEPENDENT ON THE MERCY OF EACH OTHER.

For the mercy and grace of humans is the only constitution by which humans may be served or governed.

And the mercy and grace of humans is the only civilization in which humans can find protection.

If it wasn't for that urge toward mercy and grace we'd still be collecting each other's scalps, living in caves and raiding neighboring tribes.

It isn't organized government which has raised us out of such savagery, but pants on our legs, votes in our hands and corned beef and cabbage in our tummies. It's that same "mercy and grace" which Sir Robert Horne finds so humiliating and insulting when extended by the working masses of England. And it is only by a continuance of that mercy and grace that we will be kept from sinking back into savagery.

It is well for us to remember that. We need such realization as much in America as they need it in England. But it's a two-way realization. It won't do for the railroad men to arise and say, "Well, if it wasn't for OUR mercy and grace this country would go to the dogs!" And it won't do for the bankers and professors and writers and politicians to say, "Well, if it wasn't for OUR mercy and grace this country would revert to the jungle." We must all realize that none of us could exist in safety or health for twenty-four hours if it were not for the mercy and grace of every one else.

For we can't depend on OUR form of government any more than the English can depend on their form of government or the Russians on theirs or the Turks on theirs. It's the attitude of the man behind the government that decides whether there'll be water in our wash basins and butter on our shelves. Not the decrees of a congress or a parliament.

And God help us if we forget it!

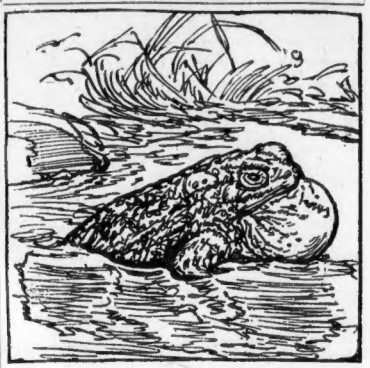
The Toad---When in Love

He Makes All Two-Legged Sheiks Seem Tame



THIS IS FATHER TOAD, IN THE ROMANTIC SPRING SEASON.

In the Spring the male toad's fancy also turns to thoughts of love. And as you see in this picture he swells out his chest in a way that would amaze the pouting dove.

Almost everybody has seen the ordinary toad that hops in the garden, snapping up insects. Little boys thought that they got their warts from handling the toads, but still went on handling toads. No toad ever caused a wart. That's one of many inaccurate beliefs.

The toad, a much persecuted creature, and one of the most useful, because it destroys so many harmful insects, slugs, grubs, worms, etc., has its brief moment of wild joy and romance.

Mr. A. N. Pack, president of the American Nature Association, uses this picture to show what the toad looks like when the love-fit is upon him.

In the Fall when it gets cold the toad digs himself into the soft earth, and there he stays hibernating all Winter. Sunshine and affection call him out in the Spring. He hops into the nearest puddle, although he is a land animal usually. There he swells out his throat, as you see here, into a big bubble, and sends out the call that everybody has heard.

The female toad recognizes that call, and in long, leaping, languorous hops she approaches her mate in the puddle.

Before long she has laid thousands of eggs in the water; tiny black tadpoles hatch out. Soon they are small, tiny, full-formed toads, hopping along the ground. Thousands are killed, but Nature supplies plenty of them, and enough survive. They in turn kill insects all Summer, bury themselves the next Winter, come out and swell their throats or lay their eggs the following Spring. And so it has gone for thousands upon thousands of years.

Mr. Toad is warty, splotchy, ugly, squatty, google-eyed, altogether unpleasant.

But there is no doubting the depth and earnestness of his affection. No desert sheik with flaming eyes, not Valentino himself, could love anything as earnestly as Mr. Toad loves his ugly, squatty mate.

Long years ago the great Italian naturalist Saranzini experimented with a frog in his mating season. He discovered, rather cruelly and unnecessarily, it would seem, that when the male frog is most deeply in love you may cut off both of his hind legs and he will pay no attention to the pain or cease his attentions to the object of his affection.

Where will you find a sheik possessing THAT degree of intensity?

The poor toad has been shamefully misunderstood. It has been thought that sometimes a jewel could be found in the toad's head, and tens of thousands probably were killed uselessly. Nobody ever found the jewel, although Shakespeare wrote about it.

Many believe that toads are poisonous; they are not, although Nature protects them by supplying them with a secretion most distasteful to dogs and other animals, which therefore keep away from them.

Strange are the animals that inhabit this earth, and marvelous is Nature's power to adapt them to their surroundings.

The heavy-headed buffalo roams the plains, the long-legged kangaroo jumps over the Australian desert. The giraffe is built with short legs behind, enormously long legs and neck in front, that he may eat leaves from the treetops. An elephant cannot reach the ground with its mouth, its neck is too short. But it has a long trunk that can pick up food from the ground or leaves from the trees, suck up water.

Fishes live at the bottom of the sea, enduring a pressure that would crush out the life of any animal dwelling on the earth's surface. And when they are brought to the earth's surface they explode; the pressure being taken away.

Moles live under the ground, eagles fly above the clouds. All have their useful work to do. Faith, the teachings of the Christian and Jewish religions, tells us that the animals were all made at the same time, during six days of creation. Science says that they are the result of EVOLUTION, gradually changing as the earth changed, that they might live under changing conditions.

The great dinosaurs, 70 feet long, roamed the earth in the old days in heavy tropical vegetation. They have gone.

A horse now with four hoofs once had five toes on his foot. Scientists PROVE that. Common sense can't question it.

It is for each one to decide how the thing was done, BUT all must admire the divine wisdom back of it all.
